THEDA BARA 'CRITICAL'; FILM VAMP GETS OXYGEN

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Theda Bara, famous "vamp" of the silent screen, remained under an oxygen tent today in critical condition with an intestinal disorder.

The retired 64-year-old actress has been ailing since an appendectomy last summer. She was hospitalized Feb. 15 and recently her condition took a turn for the worse.

Miss Bara left the screen in 1926 five years after she married director Charles Brabin, now also retired.

THE POWER OF POSITIVE THINKING For Young People

(A revision of Dr. Norman Vincent Peale's best two-year best-seller "The Power of Positive Thinking" the following is one of a daily series of articles specially directed to young people but helpful to all ages.)

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE
CHAPTER VIII
WHY WORRY?

What is worry? It is simply an unhealthy and destructive mental habit. If you have it, you were not born with it; you acquired it. And since you can change any habit, you can cast worry from your mind. So let's start breaking your worry habit at once.

Haven't you often heard a person say, "I am almost sick with worry," and then add with a laugh, "But I guess worry never really makes you ill."

But that is where he is wrong. Worry can make you ill. A doctor recently stated that there is an epidemic of fear and worry in this country. "All doctors," he declared, "are having cases of illness brought on directly by fear and aggravated by worry."

What worry can do to you is indicated by the original meaning of the word itself. It comes from an old Anglo-Saxon word meaning to "choke." If someone were to put his fingers around your throat and press hard, cutting off your air supply, he would be doing to you dramatically what you do to yourself over a long period of time by worry. You choke your abilities, your health, your creative powers.

Imagination is a source of fear, but imagination may also be a cure of fear. Your little brother or sister possesses an imaginative skill superior to your own. You've seen him stop crying because your mother has kissed the spot that hurt. Imagination is not simply the use of fancy. The word imagination derives from the idea of using images or pictures; you form an image or mental picture either of fear or of release from fear. If your little niece is afraid of a dog, she can be talked out of her fear by being told the dog is only trying to be friends, like

QUEEN, CHURCHILL IN LONG SESSION

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill stayed so long at Buckingham Palace during an audience with Queen Elizabeth II Tuesday night he immediately revived all the rumors about his expected retirement.

He called a cabinet meeting today, and the immediate speculation was he would outline a time-table for his retirement and for the British general elections expected by this fall.

The Queen left 56 minutes after Churchill arrived—an unusually long audience—but Churchill stayed another 24 minutes. It was believed he was discussing details of his retirement with the Queen's private secretary since Elizabeth must be informed first.

The top-hatted Churchill gave no hint when he emerged through the wrought-iron gates to the cheers of 100 persons. He entered his limousine, popped horn-rimmed glasses on his nose and began thumbing through a newspaper as he drove off to No. 10 Downing Street.

The newspapers were largely concerned with the possibility of his retirement, and the pro-Labor Daily Mirror pleaded in an editorial for him to "put the Tories out of their misery and announce today when he is going to retire."

It also asked that he "let the nation know straightaway if there is to be a spring election or not."

The Daily Sketch urged Churchill when and if he re-

SIR WINSTON ... calls cabinet meeting

tires to make a non-political farewell speech on television. "This would be TV's finest hour," the Sketch said.

Churchill was expected to announce his retirement in two or three weeks.

Bevan Gets Delay

Attlee Move Helps Reprieve

LONDON (UP)—Fiery left-winger Aneurin Bevan was saved from immediate expulsion from the British Labor Party today by former prime minister Clement Attlee, his bitter party opponent.

Attlee, the party leader whose authority Bevan had defied, asked the national executive committee to reprieve the Welshman rather than expel him.

Attlee sponsored a motion, which barely carried by a 14 to 13 vote, under which the executive committee decided to set up a special subcommittee of eight members to interview Bevan and explore his future attitude.

The Attlee move barely saved Bevan's political neck, for a time at least. Last week the parliamentary labor party "withdrew the whip" from Bevan in the House of Commons, making him a political outcast there—a man isolated without party recognition in parliament.

If the national executive committee had ousted him today, he would have become a man without a party.

But Attlee's proposal squeezed through, delaying the bitter internal struggle which would have broken out in the party if Bevan had been ousted.

The subcommittee interview with Bevan will be held in the next few days, and the group then will report back to the national executive. That body then will hold a special meeting to decide on further action.

Thus, the threat of expulsion still hangs over Bevan, but the uncertainty shown by the 28-member executive committee's delay represented a moral victory for him.

It also showed the mild-mannered Attlee to be the selfless politician he has been reputed to be in previous situations. The vote by which his motion carried indicated Attlee may have damaged himself in the process. But he threw his prestige into an effort to repair party harmony.

Police Think Babcock Fled in Boat to U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police today investigated the theory that prison escapee William (Bugle Nose) Babcock bought a boat in Vancouver Tuesday afternoon and headed for Anacortes, Wash., with a companion.

Babcock, starting a 20-year sentence for bank robbery, slipped out of Oakalla prison Sunday with a visiting church choir.

He was reported seen near the Fraser River Tuesday when the 32-foot cabin cruiser was bought. RCMP later saw the boat with one man aboard off Ladner, B.C.

Police in Anacortes, Wash.,

said they had a report from Blaine, Wash., that a man resembling Babcock stole a fishboat at Blaine, but police here believe it was a garbled report of their original notification that the wanted man bought a boat on the Fraser.

BUT RUSSIANS MUST MEAN BUSINESS

Ike Ready to Undertake Any Chore for Peace

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today that once the Paris agreements are ratified it might be time for exploratory talks looking toward a meeting of big power chiefs of state.

The president told his press conference he would make a lot of concessions to get exploratory talks at a lower level. But he added it was different when you are considering a meeting at the summit.

What he wanted then, Eisenhower said, was assurance that the Russians meant business. He said they had violated their promises so often that it made him wary.

Eisenhower said there was no great difference between his viewpoint and that of Senator Walter F. George (De. Ga.), who has proposed that the president initiate a big power conference meeting.

George has said he would want ratification of the Paris agreements—calling for rearming Germany—before a big power session.

Eisenhower said there is no place on earth he would not travel in order to obtain an honorable peace, and no chore he would not undertake if it promised the faintest hope of promoting the general cause of world peace.

He said, however, that he would not favor any conference which could be used for sheer propaganda purposes by the Communists.

In response to questions about George's proposal that a big-power meeting be held without prior concrete show of faith by the Russians, the president said he had never intimated that his demand for deeds rather than words from the Soviets be limited to specific matters.

BIG FIELD

Eisenhower said there is a whole field in which the Russians could show their good faith. He said he is not insisting necessarily that they agree in advance of a conference to an Austrian peace treaty or unification of Korea.

Saskatchewan Snow Blocks Main Roads

By JIM PEACOCK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Central Canada counted its loss in dead, injured and dollars today in the wake of its worst storm since hurricane Hazel claimed 76 lives in a wicked sweep last October.

In many southern Ontario areas, the storm was described by old-timers as the worst in memory. Its human toll—three were known dead early today, two were missing and five others were fighting high seas on Lake Erie—doesn't compare with that of Hazel, but its property damage appears almost as awesome.

The storm spawned on the plains of Texas, left a string of at least 28 dead in the U.S. before wreaking havoc in a 500-mile arc from Windsor to Ottawa.

HIGHWAYS CLOGGED

Its effects were felt, too, in Quebec and the Maritimes, clogging highways and disrupting plane schedules. In southern Saskatchewan, howling winds piled snow in travel-blocking drifts.

Miraculously, only eight persons in Ontario were injured severely enough to require hospital attention. Nine had to be rescued from wind-tossed waters and hundreds were evacuated from flooded homes and threatened areas.

Today, the Ontario storm centre moved further north, where the open spaces of James Bay drained its power. Behind the centre, winds from 25 to 40 miles an hour remained over southern Ontario and Quebec, most of their terrible sting gone.

ICY PELLETS

A wind-driven mixture of rain, ice pellets and snow whipped over the Maritimes today as a storm centred in Maine moved northward across the coastal provinces. There were no reports of damage.

Two persons died in the Ottawa valley during heavy snowstorms. Joseph Bertrand, 67, of Wendover, Ont., 50 miles east of Ottawa, was killed when struck by a bus as he crossed the village highway. At Pembroke, nine-year-old Irvine Clarke was struck and killed by a train.

Susan Wooley, 5, was drowned in a creek at Port Credit, 10 miles west of Toronto, when she toppled from a foot bridge by the wind.

FISHERMEN FOUNDED

Three fishermen—Fred Fuller, 49, his son, Everett, 23, and John Schiller, 18, all of Kingsville, Ont.—were spotted on an island near Pelee Island after being missing overnight.

Two others—muskrat trapper Leo Lauzon of Mitchell's Bay and an unidentified cottager from Long Point—were unaccounted for in lakeshore communities near Chatham.

Five men aboard a tiny fishing vessel battled high waves in Lake Erie in an effort to reach Port Burwell, northwest of London. Bonfires raged on the rain and snow-lashed shore of Lake Erie during the night in hopes of guiding their boat to haven.

FORCED BACK

The boat had tried to make Port Burwell from 30 miles out but buffeting winds forced her back.

A late report says the boat has been driven against 11 miles from Port Burwell.

87 MPH GALE

Winds up to 87 miles an hour lashed six-foot waves over hundreds of lakeshore cottages and homes along lakes Erie, St. Clair and Ontario. Three homes were washed into the Detroit River. Ten cottages were swept away at Long Point, in Norfolk County, and many of the remaining 200 cottages were in danger. No one was hurt.

SNOW TONIGHT AND THURSDAY

A few light snow flurries tonight and Thursday, with below-freezing temperatures down to 28 degrees and chilly northeast winds at 25 miles per hour, were forecast today for Victoria by weatherman William Mackie.

Sub-Zero

Temperatures Sweep Prairie

Sleet, Wind, Cold Hit Southern Areas

BOISEVAN, Man. (UP)—Sixty cars containing hockey fans were stranded late Tuesday night because of drifting snow. RCMP were busy today assisting the stranded motorists out of ditches and ditches. Winds up to 30 miles an hour were not helping them in their rescue operations.

REGINA (CP)—Southern prairie residents were digging out in freezing temperatures today after a wind and snow storm that blocked most highways in the southern part of Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Alberta.

Hardest hit was Moose Jaw, Sask., with 13 inches of snow and an overnight low of 13 below. Only one highway in southern Saskatchewan was open to Swift Current early today as gusts whipped snow into hard-packed drifts. Regina recorded eight below and Swift Current, coldest in the province, 15 below.

ROADS IMPASSABLE

The storm extending Tuesday night into Manitoba and temperatures today ranged from five to 15 below throughout the southern part of the province. In Alberta, gusts up to 45 miles an hour whipped 18 inches of snow into drifts Tuesday in the southwest districts. Sleet made highways impassable.

Lowest Alberta temperature was recorded at Fairview in the Peace River area where the thermometer nosedived to 29 below. Edmonton had 14 below.

British Gales Endanger Ships

LONDON (AP)—Gales ranging up to 85 miles an hour swept the British Isles today, casting two small freighters crazily adrift in stormy seas and driving a luxury liner aground.

The 400-ton Dutch coaster Anna Henny and the 128-ton Panamanian freighter Agios Georgios sent distress calls after reporting themselves blown out of control.

Later the Anna Henny managed to grip anchor only 50 yards from the rocky Welsh shore and with engines "full steam ahead" was reported holding her own.

The Colombian ship Ciudad de Bucaramanga raced to the Agios Georgios and radioed that the freighter seemed to have gained control of her steering.

IN PARLIAMENT

$400 Million Deficit Liberal Member's Plan To Assist Taxpayer

(From CP and BUP Dispatches)

A $400,000,000 plunge into deficit financing, the benefits going to income tax payers, has been suggested to the government by one of its supporters.

J. W. G. Hunter (L-Toronto-Parkdale) made the proposal Tuesday night as a measure to increase employment.

He said that if Finance Minister Harris deliberately plans for a $400,000,000 deficit in his 1955-56 budget and passes the amount on to purchasers through income tax cuts, the actual deficit probably would be about $60,000,000.

Mr. Hunter spoke during an unemployment debate after Mr. Harris announced he will present his budget to Parliament April 5.

The Toronto lawyer said he has no idea what will be Mr. Harris' budget, but a rumor going around was that a $60,000,000 deficit is planned for the fiscal year starting April 1.

"I would suggest that he budget for about a $400,000,000 deficit," Mr. Hunter said. If that amount of purchasing power were left with Canadians, the country's production would increase so much "that the minister would probably end up with some such deficit as that for which it is rumored he is budgeting."

Would Spark Consumer Buying

Mr. Hunter is the third Liberal member to suggest deficit financing as an economy-measuring measure during the off-again-on-again unemployment debate. The others, David Croll (Toronto, Spadina) and Charles Henry (Toronto, Rose-dale) did not mention any specific figure.

Raoul Foulon (Ind., Beauce) also supported a tax-cutting deficit budget. He urged reduced personal and corporation income taxes, sales and excise taxes to spark consumer buying power.

"I don't believe a deficit would be a catastrophe," he said. "In my opinion, the general pickup in business resulting from these moves would quickly bring additional revenue which would compensate for the immediate deficit."

Still to be voted on are Progressive Conservative and CCF motions of non-confidence in the government over the issue. Donald Fleming (PC, Toronto Eglinton) renewed the opposition attack Tuesday, charging the government has shown "complete evidence of irresponsibility" by not proposing any measures to meet the situation since the debate began.

He said the federal government has the main responsibility for dealing with unemployment.

Some unemployed men were deliberately deserting their families so their dependents could qualify for municipal relief assistance.

B.C. Senator Raps Divorce Bill

Sen. Thomas Reid (L-British Columbia) voiced vigorous opposition Tuesday night to any liberalization of divorce law.

Reid said he was in favor of only one ground for divorce—adultery. He said he had voted against a similar bill in the House of Commons in 1938 and intended to vote against this one.

"It was not my intention to speak... (but) after listening to some of the innuendos going around the corridors that those of us who are against this bill are against it because of some command from... some church, I decided to come boldly before the Senate tonight," he said.

He also said that mixed marriages between Canadian servicemen and Korean and Japanese girls were headed for trouble.

"There is little doubt that many of those marriages will have to be dealt with in days to come," he said. "When the children born from these mixed marriages are growing up and become isolated, the husbands will not feel so keen on living with their families."

Virtual abolition of corporal punishment was recommended Tuesday by the federal commissioner of penitentiaries.

Maj.-Gen. R. B. Gibson said Parliament should abolish whipping as part of court sentences for various crimes, but should retain it as a last resort to ensure discipline in penitentiaries.

The commissioner told the Commons-Senate committee on

A British Columbia member said Tuesday night an official of Kaiser Aluminum Company was guilty of "damned impudence" toward federal officials and members of parliament.

Herbert Herdridge (CCF-Kootenay West) cited a recent speech by R. A. Sandberg, northwest public relations director for the Kaiser company, at a meeting in Grand Forks, B.C. Sandberg was quoted in a newspaper as saying opponents of the proposed Kaiser dam had based their arguments on "inaccuracies."

Sound Economy Will Stabilize Market-Baruch

Financier Before Senate Probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bernard M. Baruch said today the main causes of the stock price boom are a vast expansion of industry and "the cumulative effects of the inflationary policies which have been followed over the past decade and a half."

"If any economic danger threatens today, it will be found not in the stock market itself but in the effects of this inflationary heritage," the 84-year-old retired financier told the Senate banking committee.

Baruch, the final witness in three weeks of public hearings on the state of the market, made three general recommendations in his prepared testimony:

"1. Determine just what our national security requires, both what we and allies must do—and then do it."

"2. Forgo all tax reductions until our defenses are made secure and the budget is balanced. Nothing could inspire more confidence in the soundness of our economy than some reduction in the national debt now more than $276,000,000,000."

"3. Discipline ourselves to whatever is required to win the cold war and real peace."

DOMINATED BY COLD WAR

The tall, white-haired financier, who made millions in Wall Street, said the stock market is largely a mirror of the whole economy and the economy now is dominated by the cold war.

"If our general economic and security policies are sound," he said, "the stock market will adjust to them and we will not need to worry about a possible collapse of the market. If we do not pursue our national security and our national credit, then nothing can have lasting value."

Baruch said there is no way of telling whether stock prices have gone too high. "If inflation is to persist, many stocks may be underpriced today," he said.

Baruch cautioned the committee against trying to give the investor too much protection. He said you can't legislate "against human folly or against the adventurous spirit which helped make America great."

Deny Engagement

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — The place here Tuesday denied rumors of a possible engagement between Belgium's King Baudouin and 22-year-old Princess Margarita of Baden. The princess, who is the niece of Britain's Duke of Edinburgh, is training to be a nurse in London.

They are Allan G. Curtis, 15, and W. J. Stewart, 15. Both boys wore navy blue jackets with sport shirts.

Paratroops Called Out In Viet Nam

SAIGON, Indochina (UP)—American-backed Premier Ngo Dinh Diem ordered troop reinforcements into Saigon today to meet the threat of open hostility by South Viet Nam's armed religious sects.

One thousand heavily-armed troops from the north of the capital fled through the city early this morning and the premier ordered two battalions of paratroopers into town to reinforce government troops.

The three religious sects, which gave Diem a five-day ultimatum to reorganize the government, to their tactics announced they were "continuing deployment of their military forces" for a showdown.

U.S. officials worked hastily to prevent open fighting in free Viet Nam. Reliable sources said special U.S. Ambassador Gen. J. Lawton Collins was meeting the leaders of the three sects today.

$5.3 Million Fires Damages In Army Camps

CCF'er Sees Link With B.C. Thefts

OTTAWA (CP)—Fires at defense department installations in 1954 and in the first two months of 1955 caused damage estimated at $5,324,647. A return tabled Monday in the Commons said damage amounted to $5,173,628 in 1954 and to $151,019 in January and February this year.

A Saskatchewan CCF member of parliament is attempting to determine whether there is any relation between fires and thefts at No. 11 Works Company, Royal Canadian Engineers, stationed at Vancouver, Victoria and Chilliwack, B.C.

Hazen Argue, Assiniboia, asked two questions on Tuesday's Commons order paper for the number and nature of any investigations being conducted into thefts from the armed services.

The questions followed recent disclosures by Brig. George Kitching, officer commanding the B.C. area, of thefts from No. 11 Works Company.

'Babes In Woods' Case May Be Near Solution

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police have found a new lead in Vancouver's "babes in the woods" mystery murders.

Buried in a shallow, leaf-covered grave, the skeleton of a boy and girl were found in Stanley Park two years ago. There was no trace of their identity. Clothing had disintegrated into shreds.

A woman who took her own life by gassing two years ago may have committed the murders.

A woman telephoned police headquarters Monday with information on the suicide and a possible link to the slaying of the children.

The suicide victim's two children had not been seen for some months previous to the time she was found dead in a gas-filled room, the informant reported. Description of the children was much the same as that of the "babes."

Police did not disclose further details pending investigation, but said:

"It is the most solid lead in months of investigation."

'GRAVE ISSUE'

Democrats Gleefully Squirrelly

WASHINGTON (UP)—The famous, playful White House squirrels never had so many defenders as today.

The Democrats, delighted to find the GOP exposed on a down-to-earth issue, gleefully teased off on President Eisenhower for having the White House squirrels trapped and exiled because they scratch up his practice golf green.

Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.) accused Mr. Eisenhower of doing "permanent and irreparable damage to an American tradition" by trapping the squirrels and carting them miles away to preserve the surface of his putting green. Neuberger kicked in $25 to start a fund to build a squirrel-proof aluminum fence around the golfing area.

The White House was icily silent. Press Secretary James C. Hagerty refused to answer any squirrelly questions.

Ike Approves Yalta Release

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower said today he earnestly believes that pertinent documents of all secret wartime conferences should be made public.

But he said they should be used to learn lessons from past mistakes—not to damage reputations or pin blame on participants.

Nor should they be used to upset American allies, the president told his news conference. Mr. Eisenhower made the statement under questioning about the administration's controversial decision which led to the publication last week of the 1945 Yalta conference documents.

Mr. Eisenhower said such papers should not include casual conversations of the participating leaders.

And he emphasized that publication of such documents must be considered carefully where interests of American allies are involved.

In so many words, Mr. Eisenhower said publication of wartime documents should not be used for political advantage.

Speaking with great feeling, he said there is nothing to be gained by going back 10 years to show that someone may have been right or wrong at that time. He said people forget and cannot recapture the atmosphere of war. If we believe participants at the wartime conferences acted for the best good, the president said, the documents should be laid out dispassionately so that lessons can be learned from past mistakes.

FRENCH SENATE OPENS FINAL ARMS DEBATE

PARIS (UP)—The French senate began final debate today on ratification of the Paris arms treaties.

Premier Edgar Faure was optimistic that the pact would be ratified by the end of the week and that West Germany would be free to arm 500,000 men as an ally of France, its ancient enemy.

A spokesman said that Faure has won the cabinet's solid support of ratification.

College Donors Give 135 Pints To Blood Drive

Victoria College students donated 135 pints of blood to a Canadian Red Cross travelling clinic Tuesday—but fell far short of their aim to bring the Corpse Cup to Victoria.

Corpse Cup is awarded annually to the Canadian College which provides the highest percentage of the student body as blood donors during a special one-day drive.

The bleeding competition at Vic College chalked up a score of just over 42 per cent. But the champs at present, Sackville, Nova Scotia's Mount Allison University, gave 76.17 per cent of the school potential to take the cup and hold it for two years.

Fourteen colleges compete for the trophy, a silver replica of a 20 cc. blood container.

The college got an assist from 54 soldiers from Work Point army engineers, but their contribution didn't count for the cup. It counted heavily with the Victoria Red Cross, though, officials said.

Victoria Normal School, which gave blood last year to the clinic, sent no one to the school clinic Tuesday.

The blood drive continues today at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort, where contributions will be taken from the general public. Hours of operation, today and Thursday, are 1.30 to 4.30 p.m. and 7 to 9.30 p.m.

The clinic, coming in the middle of the Red Cross spring fund campaign, represents an all-out drive for support by the blood transfusion services as well as about 600 canvassers who seek to raise $74,000 by March 31.

OTTAWA (CP)—Police Chief Walter Mulligan of Vancouver, where the majority of Canada's 3,000 drug addicts are said to be concentrated, will give evidence next week before the Senate's special committee investigating the illegal drug traffic.

Junior Good Citizen To Get $50 From JC

A positive step for furtherance of community interest among young people has been taken by the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, which will give a $50 Canada bond to the top city boy and girl judged as making the most worthwhile community contribution.

Object of the contest is to encourage responsibility and to foster worthier attributes of youth, said Eric Charman, Jaycee civic affairs committee chairman.

Organizations in Victoria are asked to select from their groups a boy or girl aged 14 to 17 considered to be best qualified. Entries must be accompanied by letters setting out in full qualifications for nomination.

Points to be considered will be diligence and initiative in school; leadership ability, services rendered groups and organizations; civic awareness; sportsmanship; faithfulness and service to church, and acceptance of family responsibility.

Special achievements such as sports, music, literature or art will also be considered in making the awards.

Closing dates for entries, which should be mailed to the chamber office, 816 Wharf Street, addressed "Junior Citizenship Awards," is April 29.

Jet Base Raids Recommended by Chiang General

TAIPEH, Formosa (UP)—Gen. "Tiger" Wang Shu-Ming, Nationalist air force commander, said today he would recommend air strikes against Communist mainland jet air bases now under construction when they become a threat to Formosa.

Wang told United Press in an exclusive interview he will urge the Taipei government to destroy Red China's air strength before it can attack Formosa or the offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

The Agreement Continues

THE GENERAL AGREEMENT on Tariffs and Trade has been renewed for a further two-and-a-half years, to the great benefit of international trade. As one of the 34 member nations, which control 80 per cent of the world's commerce, Canada has been probably the chief beneficiary of the agreement. Continuation of the arrangement is therefore of prime importance to this country.

But GATT goes into its eighth year with some serious handicaps. The present renewal has been conditional on certain waivers insisted on by the United States. These are the chief "loopholes" referred to by Trade Minister Howe in his address at Montreal last Monday.

The waiver rights enable the United States to restrict farm imports where these are found to interfere with measures for support of domestic prices. It is United States law, for instance, that agricultural imports shall be closely regulated when the produce concerned has been declared as surplus and domestic growers are being subsidized.

Such a measure can have serious repercussions on Canadian exporters. Washington's reservations on the operation of GATT were described by Mr. Howe as "a regrettable incident in the commercial relations between Canada and the U.S."

However, the important thing is how the waivers are to be used, the Minister added. New, severe trade restrictions by the United States are not expected.

The advantages of the scheme, indeed, far outweigh the reservations. The General Agreement is one of the few postwar international efforts which have been effective. Inaugurated at a meeting in Geneva in 1947, GATT's purpose was to reduce trade barriers, foster freer commercial relations and provide a meeting ground for direct negotiation of trade arrangements between members.

These functions it has performed with a good measure of success, but numerous problems had arisen to hamper full effectiveness. It was found, for instance, that some central body was required to administer the GATT regulations and provide a more continuing supervision than was afforded by the annual conferences. This need has been met by a recommendation of the latest Geneva meeting that an Organization for Trade Co-operation be formed to police the operation of the agreement.

But of much greater gravity was the situation that had arisen in regard to United States trade. As the leading industrial nation in the world and a prime factor in world prosperity, the U.S. exerts a tremendous effect on international trade. Policies originating in Washington may have an adverse effect among a dozen other nations, and particularly is this true of Canada, which annually sells nearly $2.5 billions to the United States, and buys from that country nearly $3.3 billions.

Facing a heavily protectionist Congress, President Eisenhower had little hope of winning acceptance for GATT unless escape clauses were provided. As now amended the agreement has a much better chance of survival in Washington, although its effectiveness, as Mr. Howe pointed out, will depend largely on the restraint which governs application of the amendments.

GATT of course provides for retaliation by injured nations. But obviously Canada could expect nothing but loss in any trade war with the United States.

Among the GATT decisions made public this week was a ruling that subsidies should not be used to foster export trade where the country already enjoys a "fair share" of world markets. This should aid in stabilizing trade, although, as in many of the voluntary undertakings of the member countries, such terms as "fair share" are capable of various interpretations.

Another provision requires member nations to consult with other countries before throwing large surplus stocks on world markets. Underdeveloped countries, however, will receive special tariff concessions to aid them in establishing themselves.

It is evident that in so complex a field as world trade there are many difficulties in the way of smooth operation. The General Agreement is a laudable effort by a large group of nations to overcome some of the difficulties and free the international exchange of goods of many of its artificial impediments and inequalities. On that basis alone it merits the support of all governments.

What Makes a Driver 'Impaired'?

LAST WEEK IN SAANICH POLICE court Magistrate H. C. Hall dismissed a charge of "impaired driving" against William Bell Stevenson. The action was taken after an unusual hearing following a two-car crash.

Testimony disclosed that the driver of the other car was a police officer not on duty. His evidence indicated that he had consumed a dozen drinks at a house party before entering his car and driving away. The officer did not consider himself intoxicated or "impaired." He said his condition was similar to that of passengers in his vehicle. In reply to a question he added that his passengers "possibly" could have been charged with impaired driving had they been at the wheel.

The off-duty officer was not charged as the result of the accident or his condition.

In the light of these circumstances, the comment of Magistrate Hall is significant. It would appear, he said, that the officer was the person at fault, "and there is some evidence he was intoxicated. But I am not deciding that..."

The case cannot be dismissed as one of those unusual incidents which occasionally occur in highway accidents and police action. It cannot be ignored because it raises serious doubts about the entire application of the "impaired driving" charge so commonly laid against motorists involved in accidents after they have had something to drink.

The provision of such a charge is good. It is a method by which guilty parties can be brought to court and made to answer for their carelessness or incompetence as drivers as a result of their drinking.

When, however, a driver is brought in to face such a charge and another involved in the same accident and who had admittedly been drinking—had consumed "about a dozen drinks"—is not charged at all, the public has the right to ask questions.

The incident calls for investigation, either by the police commission or the Attorney-General's office. The "impaired driving" clause is much too important to permit doubts as to its application by the police.

Unless the case is cleared up, the public will wonder what makes a driver "impaired" if "about a dozen drinks" does not, and what, if any, discrimination police officers use in pressing the charge.

Capping a Fine Career

EDUCATIONAL CIRCLES OF British Columbia and other parts of Canada have known Harold L. Campbell in many roles.

Formerly a rural school teacher, later a principal, then Normal School vice-principal, municipal inspector, director of the Summer School of Education here, chief inspector of schools for B.C. and superintendent of education, the present deputy minister has enjoyed an unusually successful career in his chosen field.

In recognition of his excellent record—a record that reveals a warmly human approach to education and those connected with it from the beginning student to the teacher and high departmental official—the University of British Columbia will honor Mr. Campbell at its Spring convocation with an honorary doctorate of laws. The award is widely applauded by all who know the splendid contribution he has made to his city, his province and Canadian education in general.

It is a fitting tribute to a man who has faced the mounting problems of mass education realistically, who has preserved his faith in the abilities of educationists, particularly teachers, to cope with the job thrust upon them, and who has never doubted the inherent capacities of British Columbia's youth.

To hundreds in this province his recognition by the university carries the added satisfaction of a tribute to a man they know as a close personal friend.

Problem Child

Chips

BY DAVID BROCK

Do it yourself! Everywhere I go, books and magazines and advertisements and shopkeepers and neighbors keep nagging me with "Do it yourself! Fix it yourself! How to be a plumber for 50 cents in stamps or coin." and so on. It is driving me stark crackers. I dare say a little of my reaction is merely sour grapes. I am envious of the men who can put a new wooden leg on their chair or even on their grandfather. I envy their skill, their joy, their thrift, their glory, and all that. Further, I realize that the man who can do things for himself is more a whole man and therefore a more natural and happy man.

AND dammit, I do quite a lot of things myself myself. (That double "myself" looks odd somehow. I must learn how to fix my sentences myself.) Let's see... I cut my own wood and grind my own wholemeal for bread and porridge (without being a health-addict over it, either). I grow my own vegetables (in summer only). There was a time when I carved toys by hand... not on a sissy power tool. I write many of my own songs. I usually entertain myself quite successfully; "my mind to me a kingdom is," and not only a kingdom but a circus. "Every man his own circus" has long been my motto, and I invented the motto myself. Make your own motto at home in your spare time; send me 50 cents in stamps, coin, or gum.

I HAVE done very minor electrical repairs... and here a professional humorist would start horsing around with the idea of his helplessness when he changes a fuse or a washer or something like that. The idea being that the more helpless he pretends to be, the more helpless with laughter will be his customers. It never fails. But since it never fails, why can't his customers write that sort of stuff in their sleep? Do it yourself! Well, no matter what I do myself, it is obviously not enough. Majority opinion wants me to become an amateur carpenter, joiner, plumber, bricklayer, plasterer, roofer, tiler, and electrician. It wants me to be a painter of both houses and landscapes... a second Hitler, in fact. It wants me to weave carpets and tapestries, make models of ships that are both unsailable and unsaleable, and redesign my heating plant. (I think it is called a plant. Indeed, I know very well it is called a plant, but I'm using the helpless formula again.) SOCIETY expects me to rebuild a built-in Hi-Fi set. Do you remember that old music hall song, "Hi, hi, tidly-tidy, she's the best that money can buy?" I am supposed to be able to sing that over my Hi-Fi (tidly-tidy). And nobody is entitled to sing it unless he has installed the little monster himself.

I am very fond of certain manifestations of high fidelity. For example, if I were a muezzin in the desert, I would be very touched to see the faithful getting down on their knees in spite of all the scorpions in the neighborhood and the searing heat of the sand, and I would very likely yell down an encouraging "Hi-Fi!" But as for my having to build a Hi-Fi set, at enormous wear-and-tear on my nerves and pocket... no, I don't like the word. I don't like the thing itself, and I don't like the people. I shall stick with Low-Fi and No-Fi... they attract a more easy-going bunch.

BESIDES, I am too busy worrying about something else. I hear I have to repair various household labor-saving devices known as the Sinkmaster, the Pie-master, the Breadmaster, the Floor-master, the Bathmaster, the Sudmaster, the Ice-master, the Dustmaster, and so on. Who's master around here, anyway? We're living in a state of chaos. Too many masters. I asked my wife if she owns a device known as the Basement-master, or Basementer... She said no, not yet. I said good, I'd go down to the basement and be master there for a while. You'd like my basement. It has not any rummies or power tools or anything. The reason I won't have power tools is that all power tools corrupt, and absolute power tools corrupt absolutely. My basement hasn't got a warm spotless smooth floor, and waterproof walls, and lighting that make your friends look purple. Nobody goes down there to play. When a guy goes down there he's not fooling.

AND he knows where he is, too. The whole idea of a basement should be that it is the lowest part of the house in every sense. It should look like a basement and act like one. Mine does. Only once has a man come in and said "Sweet heaven, where am I?" in a muffled gasp. He was the building inspector. When he saw my basement he had my taxes reduced. When he sees most people's basements he has their taxes sent up, and he also considers them to be living in sin. Or at least living in a dream world they have made at home in their spare time. A dream world with fibroid panelling. (We old house-surgeons call it the fibro-intestinal layer.) I bet you not many people have cats and rats in their basement simultaneously. I have. The cats are not even mine... just strays. The walk in through various orifices. Why shouldn't they? The rats all do. This is Liberty Hall. I mean, downstairs it is Liberty Hall. ## As Our Readers See It

FOR ONE WHO CANNOT SEE This letter is written in the hope that it may be read by a young man or woman in our community, who would be willing to devote two or three hours each week giving pleasure to a young man less favorably situated than they are.

We have, permanently, in one of our local hospitals, a man in his early thirties, who through no fault of his own, is totally blind and terribly crippled. His condition is such that he cannot be taken out in a car, but his greatest pleasure is to go out in his wheel chair on a sunny afternoon, perhaps to Beacon Hill Park, perhaps along the waterfront or other place of interest.

Many men and women when terribly handicapped naturally become very depressed, but this is not the case with this person whose mentality and intelligence are quite exceptional, and whose cheerful outlook is worthy of the highest admiration.

His chair is almost new, the movement is very easy. All that he requires is a happy congenial companion to wheel him along on a Sunday or week day afternoon.

If you will kindly phone, write or call, the fullest details will be gladly given.

JUST PEANUTS

According to press reports Premier Bennett is reported as saying, "The Lord Royal Commission and the by-election will cost the people of this province, tens of thousands of dollars, and it's just a Liberal political manoeuvre."

Mr. Bennett's memory is very short indeed when he laments about the taxpayer footing the bill for the above. Does he think we should forget his own "political manoeuvres"?

It seems to me the same Mr. Bennett caused the taxpayers to pay for three needless by-elections when he opened up three seats, one for Mr. Bonner and two for "that wonderful man" Mr. Gundersen. Then there is the little (?) matter of $28,000 for increasing the M.L.A.'s indemnity plus pensions. Then the added taxes this Sacred government has forced upon the taxpayers to say nothing of the added powers to borrow over one hundred million dollars.

Yes indeed the people of this province will pay "tens of thousands of dollars", Mr. Bennett. The bill for the Lord Royal Commission and the by-election will be peanuts compared to the taxes Mr. Bennett has handed out to the people of this Province. One may well ask Mr. Bennett, How dumb do you think we are?

ONE OF THE MANY TAXPAYERS.

"REAL" CHRISTIANITY

In his letter, "Father Of All Things", in your issue of March 19th Mr. Gene Orland refers personally to my request for a definition of "real" Christianity, and tells us that Christ has given that. It consists he says of "Loving God And Our Neighbor."

But if we take the picture Christ gives us of his conception of love of our neighbor in his parable of the rich man and Lazarus, where he describes a "great gulf" existing between a man still able to speak and feel pain, asking for a drop of water to cool his parched tongue, tormented in burning flame, but beyond help, we get a rather negative picture of love for our brother in need.

This picture drawn by Christ is rather too unimpressive of that drawn by John Calvin (a very devout follower of Christ) who declared the greatest happiness of the "saved" Christian would be looking over the ramparts of Heaven at the writhings of the damned in hell throughout eternity. These two men were but products of the local environment, education and beliefs of their day, and not at all in keeping with present ideals and concepts of free thinkers, of humanists, and mature minded persons of today.

INTELLECTUALS AND RELIGION

There has been considerable correspondence following publication of a London article, in your issue of January 14, wherein Dr. Margaret Knight, lecturer in psychology at Aberdeen University, made the statement in a BBC broadcast, that "the children of scientific humanists should be taught that the New Testament is a fairy tale." As in law, we should have liked to see a categorical denial of the broad statement that the New Testament is a fairy tale.

The intellectuals have their right to challenge the many interpretations of scripture, and to suggest a new approach to that study. They are also entitled to search diligently for error, while seeking for the truth. To suggest that the New Testament is a fairy tale because there is disagreement as to doctrine, is a negative approach to truth, and to history.

Matthew Arnold in his great work "Religion and Dogma" written over a century ago, made significant challenge to the teachings of the clergy, when he charged that the bishops and theologians were guilty of destroying faith in the Bible and in religion, because of their insistence on dogmas. Arnold declared, time and again, that religion was three-fourths conduct; that that was the way the prophets taught religion.

In one of his addresses, Arnold declared, with forcefulness, that the time would come when the people would turn away from religion and the Bible; and then would come a period of great hunger and thirst for that which the Bible declares so strongly, "the need for religion—for conduct, which is three-fourths religion. We are in that period today. The answer to Dr. Margaret Knight's statement is, that the Bible and New Testament are not fables, or semi-fables, but are everlasting, highest fact.

For laymen, there is perhaps no better witness than Harry Emerson Fosdick's recent book, "The Man from Nazareth", as His contemporaries saw him; and for those who would go deeper into science and psychology, we sincerely recommend "The Unfolding Universe" by Arthur Findlay. Science has given eyes to faith. The clergy owe a long overdue debt to the people of the world, to declare "the truth that makes men free," and to tell all of it.

KNOW BETTER?

Goliath, the great materialist who trusted in armaments, failed to realize that there was a God in Israel! Are we today inclined to emulate him?

A friend said to me yesterday, "When do we start gardening? If it goes on like this what I have planted will rot."

We have been assured by the knowalls that these plagues would fall on the "iron curtain" nations and not on us. They are falling on us—fifty million dollars damage to winter wheat crops by dust storms almost overnight in the U.S.A. Why? Possibly because we ought to mend our ways, we who have been presented with the lively oracles of God; we, who are supposed to know better!

Respectfully and Sincerely

By I. N. S. in The Ottawa Journal

ON February 22 the Secretary of State for External Affairs of Canada wrote the Ambassador of the United States of America a letter. The letter was four lines long. It was:

My Dear Ambassador,

In reply to your letter of February 21, 1955, on our respective plans for the construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway, I wish to confirm that your letter represents the views expressed in our meetings.

Yours sincerely,

L. B. PEARSON.

I submit this letter as a document to be put away in the next steel box to be laid under a cornerstone. It seems to me the highest possible tribute to our present day civilization, to Canadian-American relations, and to the intelligences and characters of Ambassador Douglas Stuart and the Canadian Foreign Secretary.

This was a mighty important letter. For Mr. Stuart had written a formal notification that said, at some length and in some technical detail, that as the Americans were for the present going to have exclusive navigation rights in the Cornwall-Barnhart Island—areas they would grant to the Canadians exclusive navigation canal facilities in the Iroquois area.

In short, we would not duplicate each others canals. But a lot of high-level discussion and investigation and planning took place before Mr. Stuart could write his letter. Our mutual border line is not quite so informally maintained as the after-dinner speakers would have us think, nor our navigation and power rights on that line.

"MIKE" SAYS "SURE"

But once the plan was agreed upon all that was required was a letter from Douglas to Mike, and a reply in four lines from Mike saying "sure".

Surely we shouldn't take the case of these two letters for granted.

It should be noted, for example, that Mr. Pearson replied in one day.

It will also be noted that Mr. Pearson didn't feel it was necessary for him, as Minister of the Crown, to repeat the whole thing on his own stationery, nor rewrite it in the Queen's own English or East Blockese. He simply said yes.

And he didn't muck about with any guff about having presented the matter to his Cabinet colleagues.

I'd like to think that this Stuart-Pearson correspondence will become hallowed not only for what they wrote but for what they didn't write.

Neither of them referred to the great river as a ribbon of peace or as the world's greatest inland waterway.

Neither of them floated castles of the future down its mighty reaches, nobody spoke of what all the new power would mean to democracy.

It apparently didn't occur to either of them to state that this agreement was still another symbol of the way these two great nations, under God, can march in hand to their manifest destiny.

And so great is their mutual confidence in each other's friendship that neither of them referred to it.

Ambassador Stuart didn't feel "he had to say something of how he appreciated the manner in which the discussions and meetings had been held."

"RESPECTFULLY YOURS"

Indeed, Ambassador Stuart didn't even send his kindest regards or assure the Minister of his highest esteem. He just signed off "respectfully yours"—and no doubt meant it.

And when Mr. Pearson came to reply he knew that thanks were unnecessary and he forewore his customary free and easy nature and said nary a word about the part the Ambassador's good will had played in this matter.

Up until the very end I kept thinking there'd be some joking reference to the fishing up on Manitoulin Island where Mike's constituents exist, or to the world hockey championship. After all, they all depend on water and so does the St. Lawrence.

But straight was the path, and "yours sincerely" was L. B. Pearson.

Anybody laying a cornerstone?

Sub rosa so to speak, discreetly hid not prone to perish or disintegrate. You find the things, first cousins to the quid.

'Neath anything unless it be your plane, the quid.

'Neath counters and the stools of my cafe.

Or anybody else's dining room.

Well parked, adhered, intended there to stay.

Today, tomorrow, till the day of doom.

Undated samples, relics of the mint.

Bereft of flavor just a sticky mess.

Donated free of limit or of stint.

By whom or when is anybody's guess.

So be it till the day they hap to find Atomic value in an after chew.

Come such a day methinks the ties that bind.

Profitable Everest

LONDON—It's interesting to see that close to $300,000 profit has been made out of the fact that Sir Edmund Hillary was the first man to get to the top of Everest. And the money is still pouring in from books, films and lectures. It will be used by the newly formed Mount Everest Foundation to finance future expeditions.

The less than $60,000 that the expedition cost has proved a good investment. How does Hillary benefit from this 400 per cent profit? Back now at his bee-keeping in New Zealand, he is not noticeably enriched. I suppose that's only right. He's an amateur sportsman and it was a team effort anyway that got him to the top.

Reyburn

Nevertheless, some of those of the team are doing well financially out of it. For example, the leader, Sir John Hunt, gets his percentage of royalties from the best-seller he wrote, "The Ascent of Everest."

ENGLAND'S OUT-OF-WORK actors and actresses are going ahead with their scheme to establish factories for unemployed theatre people waiting for that break that never seems to come. Soon they will be converting a church in Old Street, Shoreditch (a stone's throw from the Bank of England), into a factory to employ 300. It will certainly be a factory that's different. The workers—some of the more than 3,000 theatricals who are permanently unemployed—will be allowed to down tools whenever they feel like it to make hopeful calls to theatre managements. The music coming over the public address system will be interrupted from time to time for announcement of show-business news. Time off for auditions will be given without question. They can leave at 24 hours' notice if they get a stage role. And, as some cynic remarked, it will be the only factory in the world where everybody calls everybody else "Darling!"

SIX TIMES as many people here are being cremated as there were before the war. One in every five people who die is cremated now. There are 75 crematoria in England and there is a line-up of 200 local authorities waiting to set up the facilities for cremation. The Liverpool City Council makes about $4 on every cremation and loses $18 on every earth burial in that city.

NEW ON THE MARKET are special women's eye-glasses for weddings. The rims of translucent plastic decorated with silver and pearls are designed to harmonize with bridal gown and veil.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

After a Heart Attack

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

Persons write letters which suggest that, after a heart attack, they get into more trouble from the many medicines they took than from the attack itself. Naturally, I cannot criticize anyone and I will not criticize because I know nothing about these cases, but I know this, that if I ever have a heart attack and ride it out, as most men do, I will get up and into a chair as quickly as possible. If, then, I find that I am not short of breath, or if I find that a little walking around doesn't bother me, I will walk around.

I won't take any more medicine than I would if a stray bullet from some hunter's gun had recently creased my chest wall and left a scar. Why should I take medicine for a scar? Often I can't see why a man should take medicine simply because he has a scar in his heart. Commonly, the heart goes on working perfectly well, or well enough for all practical purposes.

In many cases the man's doctor felt just as I do, and would have preferred not to give him any medicine, but he knew that if he didn't give some medicine the patient or his wife or family would feel that the fellow was being badly neglected.

FLOATING SPOTS

Many persons ask me what to do for floating spots. The commonest floating spots that one sees if one looks at the sky are due to tiny strings of mucus in the tears that are moistening the front of that eye. No one should worry about them. They will never do any harm. Other spots are what an eye specialist calls vitreous opacities. They are due to little dense spots in the clear jelly-like substance which fills that part of the eye that is behind the lens.

Let us remember that the globe of the eye is divided near the front by a sort of partition which contains within it the lens. In front of this lens is a liquid "humor" and back of the lens is the vitreous humor, a glass-like jelly. These humors in a normal eye are clear. But in some persons little foreign bodies form and cause the small dark spots.

So far as I know, there is no use worrying about these vitreous opacities because I cannot imagine any way in which they could be removed. The best thing is to quit worrying about them.

UNMARRIED MOTHERS

Miss Virgil Payne, of the Florence Crittenton Homes Association (608 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill., U.S.), has recently pointed out that just as juvenile delinquency has increased 45 per cent during the last five years, the number of children born to unmarried mothers in the U.S. has increased from 7.5 per thousand in 1939 to 14.0 per thousand in 1950. This is an increase of 86 per cent. Actually, the figures must be considerably higher than this because in one way or another many illegitimate births are concealed, and not reported.

Many persons know that there are Florence Crittenton Homes in many of the United States. These are places in which a girl can go and be well taken care of in every way. Over 50 per cent of the girls helped are under 19 years of age. One-third of the girls did not complete high school, one-fourth were unemployed, and many, when they got into trouble, did not know where to turn.

Often, during the three or four months in which the girl stays in the Home, she does a lot of thinking, and she is helped by fine women about her; she is helped to become a better and a finer woman.

She may become serious and sensible enough to stop drifting, and to try to become a useful member of society; someone who will some day make a good wife; someone who can go to work and hold a job; someone with a sense of duty to others; someone who will enjoy the feeling of having accomplished something in this world, someone who will lose her old rebellious feelings and hostilities toward society; someone who, perhaps, will lose her old shyness and awkwardness, and will learn to associate comfortably and easily with people.

Girls who, when in trouble, would prefer to be in an institution run by members of their own church can always find such places.

GEOGRAPHICAL TONGUE

People want to know what a geographical tongue is. It is a tongue on which there is an area of perhaps a mild inflammation which looks something like a figure on a map. But is why it is called a geographical tongue. Commonly, such tongues do not cause any distress. I don't know of any cure for a geographical tongue.

Factories in Canada Goal in River Control

Resources Minister Sketches Aims of Ottawa's New Water Export Policy

OTTAWA (CP)—Government policy on power use of international river waters is aimed at attracting industry to Canada, the Commons external affairs committee was told Tuesday.

This point emerged as Resources Minister Lesage outlined the government's proposed regulations under which it would license the building of dams on international rivers in Canada.

The committee is studying a bill which would require any group, including provincial governments, to obtain a federal license before constructing dams in Canada on rivers flowing from Canada into the United States.

One of the regulations proposed by the government is "progressive repatriation" of power. Briefly, this means:

KEEP RIGHT TO POWER

Power developed from Canadian water could be sold in the U.S. provided it were not immediately needed in Canada. But the contract would provide that Canada could take over progressively the use of this power as required.

Resources department officials explained that under such arrangement a U.S. firm using a lot of power would not enter a contract because it could not be assured the power in perpetuity. But a U.S. public utility supplying homes and small manufacturers would buy under such an arrangement because otherwise it would have to build its own plants or pay more for power elsewhere.

If large firms could not be assured power in the U.S. from Canadian water resources, there was more likelihood they would set up shop in Canada. At a night sitting of the committee, Mr. Lesage said the federal government is ready at any time to meet B.C. of-

Last N.Y. 'El' To Go Under Torch

NEW YORK (UP)—The Third Avenue "El" will make a final run to the east side of Manhattan next month and continue right on into oblivion.

The elevated railway, built in 1878 and the sole survivor of its species in Manhattan, will go down under the acetylene torch just as the Ninth, Sixth and Second Avenue "Els" went down before. Subways and buses have taken their place.

Nostalgic railroad fans have arranged to take a ceremonial last ride on the Third Avenue line next Sunday.

Esquimalt Pays Double In Union Library Plan

A plan for a Greater Victoria union library, owned by a joint board and maintained by each district according to population, was endorsed by members of the Intermunicipal Committee Tuesday.

$250,000 Block Planned For City

A $250,000, 37-suite apartment is to be built on Oak Bay Avenue between Davie and Redfern, it is announced by architects Clack and Clayton.

The architects did not disclose the owner's name and no permit has yet been requested from the city.

Clearing and excavation is now under way.

The structure will be of split-level design, one part being constructed on a rock mound and the other on pillars. Parking facilities will be beneath the building with an elevator connecting the lobby and suites.

Building will have maximum window space with balconies on the south side. It will include 24 single-bedroom suites, six bachelor suites and an owner's suite.

A. H. Winters has contracted for preliminary excavation which will include some blasting. Contract for building will be let within 10 days.

Death of Nurse Will Be Probed

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—Coroner Dr. Harold Dyer has ordered an inquest for Wednesday afternoon into the death Monday of Mrs. Rachel Streeter, 42-year-old nurse.

RCMP said the inquiry had been called to probe reports that Mrs. Streeter died from virus infection allegedly picked up while working in the children's ward of the North Vancouver General Hospital.

whose library costs would be increased under the new scheme, were not represented at the meeting. Further committee action was postponed to another meeting with all members present.

The committee studied a survey of the library situation which had been compiled by city librarian John Lort. (Earlier, it was planned to bring Seattle librarian John S. Richards here to complete a survey. But when he was unable to come, and a Vancouver librarian was also not free, Mr. Lort was asked to do the job.)

Mr. Lort's recommendations won immediate support from Oak Bay reeve Fred Norris, city representatives Ald. Arthur Dowell, Ald. Austin Curtis, Ald. Millard Mooney and Ald. Don Smith.

Central Saanich representative, J. D. Windsor, said, "We came here all set to argue for the system which is now proposed."

Library board chairman James Neely said the Victoria Library Board also endorsed Mr. Lort's report.

POPULATION BASIS

The plan proposes scrapping of the present system of library cost-sharing which is based on the number of books read by persons in each area. Instead costs would be shared on a basis of population.

This would double Esquimalt's present cost, slightly increase the cost to Saanich and reduce Central Saanich, Oak Bay and Victoria expense.

Ownership of the library would gradually pass to the amalgamated library board. Victoria owns the building at present and it will not be paid for until 1970.

Further, each municipality would have one voting member on the board, plus an additional member for each 25,000 of population. Currently this would mean Victoria three, Saanich two, Oak Bay one, Central Saanich one and Esquimalt one.

Just now there are seven members on the board—all selected by the city, with municipal representatives having voice but no vote.

Reeve Fred Norris said he expects there will be opposition to the new plan by Saanich and Esquimalt. The meeting was adjourned for a meeting of two weeks. Meanwhile city solicitor Arthur Patton had been authorized to report on the legal aspects of transfer of title to the board.

her, wants to kiss her. What you "image" (imagine) may become a fact if held mentally with sufficient faith.

Therefore, hold an image of yourself as being free from worry. Suppose your English teacher has assigned a paper for you to write: something like "Trees I Know." And you don't know anything about trees. What do you do? You start worrying. You talk about it to everybody you know. Days pass, and you've done nothing about writing that paper except to worry about it. You don't have to be like that. Instead of worrying, imagine yourself a person who is interested in trees, who wants to find out about trees, who looks at them and talks about them and reads about them. Before you know it, you will be the person whom you have imagined. You'll be able to write that paper and enjoy doing it.

DISPEL FEAR

Or are you a person who is afraid of thunderstorms? That is something that can make you wretched, something you'd better get rid of—for you can. Fear is the most powerful of all thoughts with one exception, and that one exception is faith. Faith can always overcome fear. So when you find in yourself the impulse to hide in a dark closet when you hear the thunder beginning to rumble, start talking to yourself. Say aloud, if it is possible: "God is now filling my mind with courage, with peace, with calm. God is now protecting me from all harm. I have no fear, for God will see me through this storm." How amazingly beautiful nature is when a great storm sweeps across the world and colossal power is demonstrated.

ASSERT FAITH

Form the habit of asserting your possession of faith. Hold an image of yourself as delivered from worry, and a mental drainage process will in time eliminate abnormal fear from your thoughts. However, it is not enough to empty the mind, for the mind will not long stay empty. It must be occupied by something. It cannot continue in a state of vacuum. Therefore, upon emptying the mind, practice refilling it. Fill it with thoughts of faith, hope, courage, expectancy. Say aloud such affirmations as the following: "God is now filling my mind with courage, with peace, with calm assurance. God is now protecting me from all harm. God is now protecting my loved ones from all harm. God is now guiding me to right decisions. God will see me through this situation."

A half-dozen times each day crowd your mind with such thoughts as these until the mind is overflowing with them. In due course these thoughts of faith will crowd out worry. Day by day, as you fill your mind with faith, there will ultimately be no room left for fear. This is the one great fact that no one should forget. Master faith and you will automatically master fear.

So the process is—empty the mind and cauterize it of fear with God's grace, then practice filling your mind with faith and you will break the worry habit. It will not be of much value merely to read this suggestion unless you practice it. And the time to begin practicing it is now while you think of it and while you are convinced that the number one procedure in breaking the worry habit is to drain the mind daily of fear, and fill the mind daily with faith. It is just as simple as that. Learn to be a practitioner of faith until you become an expert in faith. Then fear cannot live in you.

TRUTH IN BIBLE

The importance of freeing your mind of fear cannot be over-emphasized. Fear sometimes over a long period of time, and there is a real possibility that you may help bring it to pass. The Bible contains a line, terrible in its truth: "For the thing which I greatly feared is come upon me." (Job 3:25). Of course it will. If you fear something continuously you tend to create the conditions in your mind propitious to the development of that which you fear. An atmosphere is encouraged in which it can take and grow.

But the Bible also reiterates another great truth, in substance: "That which have greatly believed has come upon me." It does not make that statement in so many words; yet again and again it tells us that if we have faith "nothing is impossible" to us, and "according to your faith be it done unto you." So, if you shift your mind from fear to faith, you will stop creating the object of your fear and will instead make actual for yourself the object of your faith. Surround your mind with thoughts of faith and not fear and you will produce faith results instead of fear results.

Dig Down— It's Road, Poll Tax Time

Road and Poll tax notices are being sent out to 8,000 Victorians this week.

Due January 1, they are overdue 30 days after notices are received. Those who pay by payroll deduction do not receive notices directly.

Poll tax of $5 is paid by all male residents over 21 unless they are property holders in B.C. They are also exempt if over 60 and earn less annually than $700. Exempt, too, are persons in the armed services or militia or who were discharged as medically unfit after overseas service or temporarily invalided and those who are in receipt of pension under the Pensions Act.

Road tax of $2 is payable by every resident male or female between 21 and 60 who does not pay property taxes, and is not a member of the active or reserve forces.

Lecturer on Arctic Ocean Baffled by Secrecy Rules

Russian scientists apparently are allowed more freedom in releasing results of their researches in the Arctic Oceans than their western conferees.

Addressing a public meeting of the Victoria University Extension Association in the Normal School Monday night, Dr. W. M. Cameron, professor of oceanography at UBC, gave an informal travelogue of two seasons' work in the western Canadian Arctic.

But, he said, since the result of his research was "classified" by the U.S. defense board and the Canadian navy, he could not give any of its details.

NOT SO SHALLOW

Russian scientists, however, working since 1948 on the same subject had been able to disclose their disproof of a popular belief that the Arctic Ocean was comparatively shallow.

Ever since the voyage of the Fram in 1890, it had been deduced from the action of the tides that the depth of the basin was about 100 fathoms. The Russians had shown the bed of it was bisected by an underwater mountain range and that on either side depths down to 5,000 metres had been found.

Canada and the U. S., since 1949, had been engaged in joint oceanographic research expeditions, first in the Canadian ship Cedarwood and later in the U.S. Coast Guard ice-breaker Coalport.

It was a costly undertaking, Dr. Cameron said, but the co-operative effort was worth while. Engineers, biologists, chemists and physicists from many parts of Canada and the U.S. had taken part in the voyages.

CRAWLS MILE ON BRIDGE TO ENTER U.S.

DETROIT (BUP)—An unemployed shoemaker from Quebec city, arrested after crossing the Detroit River on a bridge girder, explained today that "sometimes I do things the hard way."

Jean Claude Simard, 26, said he made the hazardous mile-long trip from Windsor to Detroit to find work.

All went well until he came to a concrete abutment high over a downtown street and could find no grip to go farther. Police and firemen brought him down on a ladder.

Doctor Killed Wife, 3 Tots

McALESTER, Okla. (AP)—Dr. Ben Galbraith, prominent 34-year-old McAlester physician, today admitted he killed his wife and three children whose bodies were found in their burning home. He told authorities "I want to die as quickly as possible."

Galbraith said he hit his wife in the head with a bottle. He then gave each of his children an injection of morphine but it didn't take effect quickly enough and he got an insecticide and gave each one of them an injection of it.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UP)—The Argentine Roman Catholic hierarchy Tuesday circulated a pastoral letter protesting that the government is discriminating against the church.

Public officials have been removed from their posts "for religious reasons," the protest said.

Santiago Luis Cardinal Copello and the bishops of Argentina signed the 4,000-word letter. It was distributed for reading in Catholic churches throughout the country next Sunday.

How To Get Quick Relief From Sore, Painful Piles

Here is good advice to hundreds of persons who silently endure untold pain and misery from piles. You probably do not realize that sheer neglect on your part may be the reason for this nagging personal discomfort.

It is a fact that pain, itching and soreness of piles are greatly increased by constipation. Bowel action is sluggish—intestinal wastes harden—straining at stool breeds delicate rectal membranes. When this happens pile conditions are aggravated and discomfort increases.

Now, quick relief is offered you with Hem-Roid INTERNAL Pile Treatment. (Small salve tubes with water). This gently persistent medicine helps break up and smoothly pass off intestinal wastes, —helps shrink piles and permits them to heal. With the very first use of Hem-Roid you get quick relief through effective INTERNAL action. That is why an internal medicine like Hem-Roid is so satisfactory to use—why hundreds have written their thanks for making Hem-Roid available to them.

Why suffer needlessly when Hem-Roid offers you such quick and pleasing relief? Ask at any drug store for Hem-Roid. Get 30 full days supply at a surprisingly low cost. Test this great medicine today. Take steps now to relieve your pile suffering with clean, easy and pleasant to use Hem-Roid. Money back if not delighted.

WON'T FILL 'VACUUM'

Social Credit No Answer In Saskatchewan—Kohaly

REGINA (CP) — There is a political vacuum in Saskatchewan but "imported Social Credit" is not the answer, Robert Kohaly, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Souris-Estevan, said in a broadcast Tuesday night.

Mr. Kohaly confirmed press reports he had been approached by Social Credit sources from outside the province to become provincial leader of that party. He said the proposition had been made seriously and he had given it serious consideration.

He had decided that the "Social Credit theory of strong religious and racial prejudice surrounded by an unusual monetary form would never fill the vacuum, would never provide an alternate government, and would never carry out the development of this province."

In imposing sentence, Magistrate A. I. Thomas said he had taken into consideration the fact the accused spent three weeks in custody awaiting trial. Coste was arrested and charged by RCMP following an accident Jan. 30 in which pedestrian Charles Smithurst, 36, of 2919 Richmond, suffered a broken leg. ## Malton Fire Destroys Four Latest Planes MALTON, Ont. (CP) — Four of Canada's most modern aircraft, loaded with the latest jet engines and top-secret flying instruments, were destroyed Tuesday when fire swept an A. V. Roe of Canada Ltd. hangar at Malton airport.

A company official said loss to Avro Aircraft Ltd. and Orinda Engines Ltd. was $5,000,000. The two companies are part of A. V. Roe.

The company's engine-test development program was setback about six months by the losses said Ron Williams, chief public relations officer of the company. Production would not be affected.

More than 100 firemen battled the blaze, fanned by 60-mile-an-hour winds which directly caused the fire.

The winds shook the hangar and it is believed the structure's wiring broke from constant stretching, firemen said.

The hangar, leased by A. V. Roe from the department of transport, was destroyed. Value of the hangar was not immediately known.

A second hangar, leased by the Toronto Flying Club, suffered little damage as firemen concentrated on dousing it with water.

The destroyed hangar was used to house experimental aircraft and engines, company-designed ground flying equipment valued at $250,000, and the company's latest instruments.

One of three Mark IV rocket-firing CF-100s was saved by workmen who rolled it out of the hangar before the flames went out of control. The other two were destroyed.

Greatest loss was the "Flying Testbed," the company said.

The Testbed was a converted Lancaster bomber, redesigned with two jet engines replacing the regular piston-driven Merlin engines.

Also lost was a Sabre, so new that information on it is "restricted."

A Modern Achilles' Heel

It wasn't pleasant and it didn't work, but Marcel Pelletier did everything he could to take his position in goal for the Victoria Cougars Tuesday night at Memorial Arena. Before the semi-final game with Calgary Stampede, Pelletier had his cut foot frozen with a local anaesthetic in an effort to ease the pain of a two-stitch cut in the sole of his foot. However, the experiment backfired when the drug nauseated Pelletier, forcing him to leave the game after less than eight minutes. He was replaced by substitute goalie, Bev Bentley, of Saskatoon. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

Perhaps this was to be expected in a way—the thumping the Cougars took last night.

And coach Billy Reay may have inadvertently tipped the Cougar hand earlier in the day when, in answering the query: Are they fired up?, he said:

"I've seen them higher."

This, in explanation, was following the usual pre-game morning meeting in the club rooms.

Reay naturally was worried over the condition of his goalie Marcel Pelletier; but this time there seemed more concern than should have been the case.

Walker

Marcel, for his part, had his injured foot "frozen,"—that's the accepted term in sport, though medical authorities may differ.

And as is possible in some cases, his constitution rebelled.

The club physician described it as a form of nausea that caused Marcel's departure, and Bev Bentley's appearance. At any rate, Pelletier later felt fit and viewed the final two periods from the press box.

He didn't come right out and say so in so many words, obviously, but it was evident that he was experiencing a certain amount of displeasure because of what was going on below, in the third period.

But about the Cougars. They appeared fetid; nervous, if you like. They lacked drive except for sporadic bursts. And if cohesion was present, it was in the Calgary club.

Currie Liked What Stamps Showed

Coach Frank Currie of the stamps said little that could be construed as predicting a quick series triumph for his cowboys. Rather, any optimism that may have showed came in the remark: "It's nice to have that first one."

He did admit the Stamps were sharp in their shooting, remarking: "There's little a goalkeeper can do about it when you're picking the corners with fellows like McFadden."

Goalie Doug Stevenson, for his part, and an important contribution it was by the Calgary goalie when his moment arrived, commented:

"Sometimes it's like that; you do everything automatic. But that's the way you should do it all the time."

Seconds earlier, right winger Steve Wituk had shouted across the room, as one hero to another—Wituk being an outstanding figure for the stamps:

"You did it Doug; you beat 'em early in that third period."

Jack Wasn't Impressed With Reds

A world champion was in the crowd, too, Jack McIntyre of the Penticton V's being a mezzanine customer during the contest while renewing old acquaintances with the Cougars afterwards.

Jack liked what he saw for two periods, more than he liked Germany where the world championships were played. "Yeah, I guess I'm a champion," he said to a slight ribbing, then commented that an abundance of hockey talent just isn't to be found on European squads.

"The Russians are well drilled; they came on in parade," he said jokingly of the final game, while the goalie went through push ups before the contest.

Jack didn't have too much praise for the Russians, suggesting they were merely carrying out orders, but he singled out a Czechoslovakian player and a big six-foot-three-inch Swedish star as the standout players he figures could earn a place in pro hockey over here. Of the German crowds, he said: "They gave us a bad time, but were stringing with the winner at the end."

Mark Needed No Apology

Meanwhile, the Cougar still with a smile, was one who earned the right to smile, if anyone did—Mark Marquess.

Best that otherwise could be noted was that the solemnity of the occasion augurs better for Thursday.

For it seems the Cougars will need to be "higher" than Reay suggested they were Tuesday.

Even though it wouldn't be much fun, would it, if you knew who was going to win all the time?

Cougars 'Disappoint' Bev; But Flyers Get Lumped Too

Canucks Capture Opener

Vancouver 6, Edmonton 2

By the Canadian Press

A lot of people were surprised by the results of Tuesday's Western Hockey League semifinal play, but none more amazed than Bud Poile.

Coach Poile saw his league champion Edmonton Flyers go under 6-2 to the Vancouver Canucks.

Canuck's who loafed along near the basement of the league for a dangerous length of time, weren't exactly touted to win the opening game of the semis. But they did and handily.

Wingman Jackie McLeod counted twice for Canucks, and was backed by Earl Johnson, Ray Cyr, Phil Maloney and Bill Wylie. Defenseman Larry Zeidel and Steve Hrymzak scored for Flyers.

FOUR IN ROW

Teams were deadlocked 1-1 in the first and 2-2 in the second, but Canucks turned on one of their rare come-from-behind drives to sink a quartet of unanswered goals in the last period.

Edmonton was a man short when Johnson racked up the first goal of the night, and was still short when they retaliated to tie the score.

Hrymzak put Flyers ahead 2-1, rifling a 35-foot screened shot past John Bower.

The second period was only 33 seconds away from being dead when Cyr scored the puck around the corner of the net to make it 2-2.

McLeod scored twice within 10 minutes to make it 4-2, and Maloney and Wylie both beat Glen Hall for a counter before the final period ended.

Bev Sweats It Out

Loneliest person in Victoria Tuesday night was Bev Bentley, Saskatoon Quaker goalie. Bentley shuddered a little as he saw Cougar regular Marcel Pelletier pumped full of anaesthetic before the game and who could blame Bentley for looking nervous, and sympathetic. Later their positions were reversed, Pelletier sympathizing with Bentley. Pelletier was forced out of the game by illness and Bentley suffered through a withering Calgary attack in the Cougars' 7-2 defeat. (Times photo.)

OH TO BE A GOALIE

Marcel Felt for Him As Bev on 'Hot-Seat'

By DENNY BOYD

Before the game started, Bev Bentley sat quietly on a bench in the Cougar dressing room, nibbling thoughtfully on a meal of shredded finger-nails.

Bentley's pads were stacked beside him, ready to be buckled on if the opportunity presented itself.

In another corner, a tense-faced Marcel Pelletier watched, fascinated, as a long needle plunged into the sole of his foot, pumping the foot full of pain-killer.

As game-time approached, both goalies had much to reflect upon.

For Pelletier, the train of thought that clattered through his mind was: Will it work? How long will the anaesthetic kill the pain? Will I be able to use the foot? Why did this have to happen after I went through a whole season without getting hurt?

Bentley, feeling somewhat out of place in the Cougar dressing room, was thinking: Will I get into the game?

As spare goal-tender for the series, assigned by the league, Bentley was in the worst of spots. If he didn't get into the series, the trip from Saskatoon would be wasted as if he had remained in Saskatoon he could have continued in the curling bonspiel he had entered shortly before being appointed spare goalie. (He played only one game before getting the call.)

If he got into the game and the Cougars won, his contribution would be quickly forgotten. If he got into the game and the Cougars lost, he would get the blame, being the stranger in the woodpile.

An hour later, Pelletier was sitting on a bench, nibbling at a finger-nail. He was in the press box and Bentley was on the hot-seat.

Marcel grunted with every body check thrown on the ice and winced in sympathy for Bentley as the unchecked Stampede's hurtled in on the Cougar goal.

Bentley was handed a share of blame in the Cougar defeat, but this seemed unjust in view of the type of goals that beat him. Two goals were scored on rebounds, Bentley making the initial stop; a third was on a screened shot he saw for the first time as it whizzed between his skates; two others were scored on clean breaks when the fore-checking Cougars were caught out of position, and a sixth was the result of a Cougar pass being intercepted.

Pelletier kept hammering at two points during the game. 1. The Cougars could beat Stevenson by keeping their shots low. "They could score a million on him."

2. One of the Cougar players was not going all out in the third period. "He's quitting," said Marcel.

Stamps Take Series Lead; Pelletier Forced to Retire

Calgary 7, Victoria 2
Calgary leads best-of-seven semifinal series 1-0.

By BILL WALKER

It was too nice of Bev Bentley when he said: "I was disappointed."

For Bentley, if anyone had the right, could have been much more bitter concerning Calgary Stampede's 7-2 victory over Victoria Cougars Tuesday night.

Called to duty in the nets when Cougars' regular goalie Marcel Pelletier took ill at the 7:43 mark of the first period, Bentley must have felt like the scapegoat. But if he did he was one of a very few, especially of the 3,300 customers.

For the only consolation the Cougars can possibly have today over the drubbing they took last night is that the Edmonton fans are probably saying the same nasty things about their Flyers, who lost to Vancouver, 6-2, in the opening game of the other WHL semifinal series.

Short favorites before the game, the Cougars played what could best be described as almost, if not their worst game of the year. Referee Eddie Powers followed this pattern partly.

Coach Billy Reay admitted that about the Cougars—that and the fact the puck wasn't bouncing for them. He said nothing about Bentley's chore. He didn't have to.

For Bentley was a lonely figure at times, particularly in the third period when the Stamps wrapped it up with all the trimmings that go with four goals.

Even the first three Calgary counters were value for effort—Bentley, if he must be faulted at all, being trapped on the third goal with his stick in the air as Steve Wituk's screened shot went through his skates.

On the other hand goalie Doug Stevenson of the Stamps provided what turning point there was in the contest although, until he did, it didn't seem there would be one. The Stamps for the first periods were faster on the puck. The Cougars were unable to get untracked.

But when they finally did unwind, Stevenson was the whole show. It came early in the third period, the Stamps leading 3-2, as the Cougars did everything for a three-minute stretch but, to use the hackneyed phrase—put the puck in the net.

Stevenson saved twice from Ed Dorohoy, twice from Andy Heberton, once from Alex Kuzma and kicked out more than a few other shots in between.

Then Pat Lundy put Jim McFadden in the clear from centre ice and the big winger rifled a blazing shot to the top corner to give the Stamps a 4-2 bulge.

The writing on the wall suddenly became crystal clear as Stevenson cheated Davidson, and before the Stamps stopped their free-wheeling tactics, Wituk had scored his second, Sid Finney got clear to beat Bentley from close in and off the post, and Wituk completed his hat trick with a slap shot from the side.

Private Firm May Maintain Street Lights

City public works committee will recommend to council Thursday that tenders be called for maintenance and operation of Victoria's street lighting and electrical system.

The action follows an offer early this month by a mainland contracting firm to take over Victoria city lighting now operated by the city public works department.

The firm had indicated it could cut operation costs by $12,000.

OPPOSITION

Informed sources at City Hall say the public works committee recommendation will meet with stern opposition due to its wording.

Apparently, the offer by the outside firm was all-embracing. But the stipulations in the deal open to tender specify certain points which would make it harder for an independent contractor to cut costs.

City officials have met with members of the contracting firm which made the original offer. It was reported at that time the firm was ready to hire city workmen at present employed on street light maintenance.

Street lighting in Victoria costs the city about $75,000 annually.

Repairs to Victoria's 12 noon and 9 o'clock gun have put it out of action for a few days. Lt.-Col. J. C. Cave reported at Work Point Barracks today.

Fascinating Herb Garden Adds Variety in Kitchen

It is always a pleasure to write a few words each March on the sowing and planting of kitchen herbs.

Each year I hope more gardeners and homemakers will come to know the fascination of growing and using even a half-dozen different kinds.

A plant or two of the perennials such as sage, thyme, horseradish, mint, rosemary, and French tarragon are sufficient for a start, and are usually purchased at this time of the year. Parsley may be grown from seed sown in the border at almost any season.

The annual herbs may be grown in greater quantity and used generously in salads of all kinds, and in soups for early fall.

Seed of the hardier kinds may be sown now outdoors in a sunny, well-drained bed. Keep them separate for easier gathering later and be sure the tall ones will not shade the low-growing kinds. Herbs must have plenty of direct sun for top flavor and fragrance.

The annuals to sow outside are borage, large plants with rough leaves and delightful blue flowers; chervil, very dainty, parsley-like in appearance; anise, resembles dill in looks, but has a liquorice flavor; dill, well known but not used enough in salads of all kinds; summer savory, adds distinction to any dish with a robust flavor such as pork and beans, beef stews, steak and kidney pie.

A tender annual which must not be put out until frosts are over is sweet basil. This is, to my taste, the most intriguing of all the more common herbs, both in flavor and fragrance. Young leaves chopped into egg or potato salad add that delectable touch which keeps the family guessing (and coming for more). A sprig cooked with fresh beans or peas has the same effect.

Sow the seed of sweet basil indoors in mid-April and transplant to the garden in early June.

It is still not too late to put in a row of garlic. It should never be overlooked when planting herbs, for it is the king of them all!

Window Washer Thieves Jailed

Two young window cleaners were sentenced to four-month prison terms and a third was sentenced to three months in jail in city police court Tuesday for stealing.

Magistrate Henry C. Hall imposed four-month terms on Douglas Wayne Tenning, 19, of 1919 Fernwood, and Jack Taylor, 23, of 1153 Burdett. Henry Harold Porter, aged 25, of 1605 Rebecca, was sentenced to three months.

Tenning was charged with theft of clothing over $25 from Spencer's Stores Ltd., 1110

Government, and with being in possession of stolen goods, property of Empress Motors Ltd., 900 Fort.

Taylor was sentenced on charges of theft of automobile parts over $25 from Empress Motors and with receiving 4½ cartons of cigarettes stolen from Canada Safeway Ltd.

Porter was charged with theft of auto accessories over $25 value from Empress Motors. Tenning will also appear in Oak Bay police court Friday for sentence on a charge of theft of cigarettes from Safe-

All pleaded guilty to the charges.

The three were arrested March 15 by two city detectives.

Police testified that Taylor had been employed as a window cleaner and was given a key to the automotive firm. They said the articles were taken while the accused was working there at night.

Similar evidence was given in the other cases.

Columnist's Purpose No Defense in Libel

Court Makes Ruling During Action Against Province, Nicol; No Decision

VANCOUVER (CP)—Judgment was reserved here Tuesday at the conclusion of a libel suit brought against the Vancouver Province and columnist Eric Nicol by eight men who served on a murder jury last year.

Mr. Justice Harold McInnes said his decision would be handed down later.

Eight of the 12 Assize Court jurors who convicted William Wakefield Cash, 19, of the golf course murder of Frank Pitsch are seeking unstated damages from The Province and Nicol.

They claim Nicol's column on capital punishment, published March 20, 1954, reflected on them and that they suffered as a result.

"SPEAK FOR ITSELF"
Before the hearing ended in British Columbia Supreme Court Tuesday, Mr. Justice McInnes ruled that the article "must speak for itself."

He said that the purpose of the writer might have been in mind at the time he wrote it was not a factor. "The article is to be considered as complete in its face," he said.

A similar claim by John A. McEachern, a ninth juror, is pending but it is a separate action and has not yet been set for trial.

At the time the article was written, Gash was under sentence to be hanged for the bludgeoning slaying Dec. 10, 1953. The article blamed the jurors for taking Gash's life. His sentence was later commuted to life imprisonment.

LYNDA PERKS UP AS ONE PUPPY RETURNED HOME

Seven-year-old Lynda Stevens today is a half-happy little girl, which is just twice as happy as she has been.

Reason: one of her two lost police dog puppies has been returned through the lost and found service of the SPCA.

When the pups disappeared from the Stevens' car downtown more than a week ago, Lynda was so broken-hearted she suffered a relapse as she was recovering from the mumps, and had to return to hospital for an operation.

But "where is the other one?" she asks her mother of the still-missing puppy. Nobody yet knows.

Oakalla Pen Guards Win Battle of Wits With Underworld

VANCOUVER (CP)—Oakalla prison farm, rambling half-way house for some of the most notorious criminals in the country, is winning a battle of wits with underworld characters on both sides of its high wire fence.

Hugh Christie, warden of one of the largest provincial prisons in Canada, said Tuesday his guards have intercepted record amounts of escape tools, being smuggled in during the last month. The prison, in the bush-lands of suburban Burnaby, houses more convicted murderers and prisoners on serious charges than any other time in recent history.

Complicating the security problem is the fact that the jail population is around 1,100 instead of the 800 it was built for. Here are kept the prisoners sentenced to terms up to two years less a day.

It is halfway house to two other types of prisoner—those awaiting transfer to federal prisons for long terms and those recovered from prisoners' boot heels.

The smuggling of narcotics, once a top problem at the institution, "is on the wane," he said. "Many drug routes, such as the tiny pouches of powder found under stamps on letters and the doctored, heart-shaped pillows on valentine and birthday cards, have been discovered.

There are three top-security prisoners awaiting the gallows. —Lawrence Bryan Vincent, convicted of slaying Donna Lee Corbett, 12, at Quesnel, B.C.; Peter Bordeniuk, found guilty of slaying Anna Plesko at Alert Bay, B.C., and Robert Hoodley, convicted of the gun-murder of John Tonick, 39-year-old Vancouver longshoreman.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

You never can tell what is apt to make a statesman indignant.

Even W. A. C. Bennett, our good-humored premier, became indignant the other day over a proposal which is, to say the least, sane and logical.

Interviewed by reporters in Hawaii, he said Canadians would be "outraged" if so-called "whisperings" of trading Southern British Columbia for Alaska got to the talking stage.

(I am NOT making this up. The interview was reported by Reuters, a reputable news agency, and it probably goes to show the premier should be right around home this time of year, cleaning up the garden and transplanting bulbs, instead of galivanting around under the hot sun.)

I don't know who first started whispering about trading Alaska for a portion of B.C., but I would suggest a loud shout would be more suitable than a whisper for such a commendable proposition.

Every Canadian with the interests of his country at heart would be quick to endorse the trade—although the more conscientious citizens might feel a bit of a fast one was being pulled on Uncle Sam.

However, putting conscience to one side, let us immediately move toward the happy day when Canada will get Alaska, and the U.S. will be stuck with Southern B.C.

Please do not scoff at this idea. Remember, in the 1800's, people scoffed at William Henry Seward.

William Henry, you may remember, persuaded U.S. to shell out $7,200,000, and with it purchased Alaska from the Russians.

At the time, the majority of bystanders sneered heavily at William Henry, and called the purchase "Seward's Folly."

But history has proven him right. In 1867, the sum of $7,200,000 purchased all of Alaska, including an ocean coast line of bays, inlets, and rivers totaling 26,000 miles.

Today in Alaska, $7,200,000 wouldn't buy a used fird.

One obvious factor gives compelling weight for the argument to trade Southern B.C. for Alaska.

If the U.S. got Southern British Columbia, all the residents would become Americans.

And, naturally, all the residents would also qualify as American tourists.

Thus Southern B.C. would prosper mightily, having its own built-in tourists to spend tourist dollars and make the retail merchants division of the chamber of commerce live happily ever after.

Premier Bennett had better cut his Honolulu holiday short and get cracking on this deal.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Capt. R. A. Leicester, veteran shipmaster who was in command of the old Princess Marguerite when she was torpedoed and sunk in the Mediterranean during the Second World War, will retire in July, the CPR said today.

His present command is the Empress of France, in the Atlantic service. On retirement he will return to his home in Vancouver.

Vandals overnight smashed two windows in a city public works workmen's caboose parked near Bay Street and Cedar Hill Road and forced entrance into a tool wagon.

Believed stolen from the tool wagon were some helmets and first aid equipment.

Robert Leach of Sidney has been appointed conciliation board chairman in the current wage dispute between city police commission and Victoria Police Federal Union (TLC).

J. G. Rutan, a Victoria lawyer, is the commission's nominee and Fred Dougherty of the Vancouver police union will act for the city police union.

No dates for the board hearings has been announced.

An 82-year-old driver was one of four motorists fined in city police court today on charges of careless driving.

Fined $35 each were John Henry Chase, 82, of 1045 John Crescent; Clare Bristow Petersen, 836 Pemberton Road; Stanley George Rife, 706 Craigflower, and Patricia Cooper.

Court was told all were involved in recent traffic accidents.

Speeding on Quadra Street, March 4, brought a $15 fine for Martin Thomas Hanley, 253 Cadillac, when he pleaded guilty to the charge in city police court today.

275 POUNDS OF PHYSICAL FITNESS ANXIOUS TO START

Stout-Hearted Ex-Marine Given 60-40 Chance of Conquering Defiant Channel

Bulky Bert Thomas of Tacoma, 275-pound former United States marine, has a 60-40 chance of swimming the 18-mile Strait of Juan de Fuca between Victoria and Port Angeles.

This is the estimate of Thomas' trainer, Tacoma businessman Maury Hume—a former distance swimmer himself.

"I'm confident Bert will get half way across, but after that he'll have to go on sheer guts," Thomas, himself, isn't kidding himself about the size of the task he's cut out for himself.

"I know I can get half way, but after that I'll be fighting a lot more than tides and cold—one big enemy will be drowsiness."

SQUALL DANGER

Thomas says any such assault on the channel also will require plenty of luck.

"For instance, if a squall comes up at the wrong time, I'm beat."

Thomas has complete confidence in his navigator, Capt. Hugh Evans of Harold Elworthy's Island Tug and Barge Company.

"Hugh has really come up with something in the route he has mapped out for me," says Thomas. "It's going to be quite a surprise for Victorians."

Thomas will announce the route and date for his swim April 1st.

ANXIOUS

"I'm getting more anxious to go every day," he said.

POISONED BY FAVOR found inside a Christmas cracker, Sheila Olson, 9, fends off an offer to pull another. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

Crackers Blamed In Near-Poisoning

Saanich Police Investigate Bon-Bons As Stocks Cleared From Local Store

A city department store and a firm manufacturing party crackers or bon-bons here have both cleared their shelves of stocks of crackers held responsible for a near-poisoning of a 9-year-old girl, it was learned today.

Sheila Olson, 9, Hampton Road, was rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital for stomach pump treatment after she ate a tiny white pellet found in one of the crackers at a birthday party.

Saanich police are still trying to determine what type of poison is contained in the pellet. It was recovered from Sheila's stomach before it dissolved.

The little girl was at a birthday party at the home of Nancy Adams, 3335 Wascana, last Sunday. Mrs. J. T. Adams said she had distributed the crackers and the children were finding paper hats and plastic toys in them as favors.

WHITE PELLETS But some of the crackers contained white pellets with instructions for using them as a joke on adult friends. If the pellets were put in the end of a cigarette, when it ignited it would create a simulated snowstorm.

The instructions also described the pills as poison.

Two More Rooms for Cadboro Bay School

Alterations and additions to Greater Victoria schools, totaling $131,082 in 1955 capital expense, include a two-room addition to Frank Hobbs School at Cadboro Bay.

Preliminary drawings for a two-room $20,000 addition have been authorized by Greater Victoria School Board in an effort to stave off a shift system next September.

Funds for the job were allowed for in this year's school estimates and were not included in last year's referendum.

Built with an addition in view, Frank Hobbs School has adequate heating plant and wiring circuits already installed. The addition will provide 2,500 square feet of additional floor area.

Other capital expenditure budgeted for this year includes $11,060 for developing school sites, a $12,000 addition to Cedar Hill School (non-classroom), $3,500 for new lavatories at Craigflower, $1,500 for enlargements to the principal's office at McKenzie Avenue School, $26,400 to electrical reconstruction at Victoria High, $1,900 for the same job at McKenzie Avenue School, $3,550 for the same job at Sir James Douglas and $1,500 for an intercom phone system at the Oak Bay Junior High.

Furnishings and equipment for the above will amount to $48,472. Other expenses in the same regard amount to $1,200.

'Flu Outbreak Past Peak But Measles Taking Toll

Influenza has passed its peak, Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffey, medical health officer for Esquimalt-Victoria told a meeting of the Union Board of Health today.

She said the 'flu was never considered too serious by health authorities and estimated that there was never more than 25 per cent absent at one time in any one school.

She reported a high incidence of measles in the area—245 cases reported, 158 of them being school children. She added that communicable diseases tend to come in cycles.

"Flu and polio tend to strike a community in various types. The type of polio which came here in 1953 may be different than that which might occur in 1955. Children who had the earlier type could contact the new type," she stated.

She said that the X-ray survey now under way in Greater Victoria will operate next in the Chinese settlement. "We hope to come up with a program of improved services in that area."

"I sit there for three or four hours reading a magazine and drinking coffee," he relates with a sheepish grin. "I admit it looks pretty ridiculous."

Another gimmick is his way of training in fresh water near Chehalis.

He estimates he'll lose 20 pounds during the swim.

An interesting sidelight on

SPEEDERS LOSE RIGHT TO DRIVE IN CRACK-DOWN

Magistrate A. I. Thomas moved to crack down on speeders in the Colwood area Tuesday when he suspended two motorists' driver licenses in RCMP court after fining them for speeding.

Fined $15 and $3 costs for driving over 50 miles per hour on Metchosin Road was David Samuel Rains, of Metchosin. Margaret E. Hamilton, Sooke, was fined $10 and $3 costs for exceeding a 30 mph limit at Glen Lake.

Magistrate Thomas suspended licenses for 30 days in each case.

A DEATH BLOW?

$60 Wharf Fee Boosted To $10,000

Wharfage fees for the Sidney-Anacortes ferry service will be jumped from $60 a year to approximately $10,000 yearly under a federal order-in-council brought to attention of the Chamber of Commerce and Publicity Bureau here today.

Publicity Commissioner George Warren said the move would kill the tourist business for this area.

Managing secretary of the chamber, Hector Crombie, said the chamber would not register a protest with Ottawa until the "full facts and figures are known." But he and Mr. Warren said that if interpretation of the order-in-council proved correct, both groups would seek some type of federal redress.

The new wharfage fees are effective April 1.

Actual wharfage charges as worked out under the new system would amount to about $4,800, but on top of this is a new charge of 25 cents per car using the wharf. This would be another $5,000 on the basis of 20,000 cars, the approximate number of autos carried on the service last season.

Charges will be on a sliding scale: from the season's start next month, with one trip daily, charge will be $12.80 per day, and this will increase to $23.60 daily up to three trips a day.

Last year, said Mr. Warren, the Sidney-Anacortes ferry was the only ferry in the area to show an increase in business. The new move "is going to be extremely detrimental" as far as tourists are concerned, he said.

American Destroyer Here for Three Days

The Seattle-based destroyer USS Gilligan arrived at Esquimalt today for a three-day visit in the course of a training cruise.

Chief beneficiary is John Alister Wise, nephew, Cornwall, England, who is to receive a sum of $116,411. Alister David Wise, a great nephew, of the same town, is to receive $50,000.

In order to make up the difference in buoyancy between salt and fresh water, Thomas carried his youngster (100 pounds) on his back while swimming around the lake.

GREAT SUPPORT

Next to swimming, Thomas likes to talk about the friendliness of Victorians, and in particular his most ardent supporters.

"Me being an American, I must say I've been impressed with Canadians. It's my first

Cathedral Left $5,000 in Will

A sum of $5,000 to be used towards the completion of Christ Church Cathedral, was left in the will of James Wise, who served as Victoria's district scout commissioner between 1931 and 1941.

Mr. Wise, who died on January 19, 1955, left an estate of $203,448. His will was probated in Supreme Court today.

He also left $2,500 to Clifton College, Gloucestershire, England, for the building of a school scout hall.

Chief beneficiary is John Alister Wise, nephew, Cornwall, England, who is to receive a sum of $116,411. Alister David Wise, a great nephew, of the same town, is to receive $50,000.

Still backing up every word in his article, Mr. Porter said he was "impressed by the way these extremely pleasant people were—maintaining a pleasant standard of life."

"These people were brought up to observe certain traditions which today often are the subject of jokes," he said. "But they all have a fine record of service to the Commonwealth."

"The article was light-hearted, but I don't see how anyone could have a bitter reaction," he said.

Q. Will you tell me what is the value, if any, of an 1860 Queen Victoria penny? Mrs. D. A. M.

A. The coin is closing up to a century in age, but this column is informed it is worth only face value—no premium.

Q. I have been informed that about 40 years ago this city staged what was known as Victoria Carnival Week. Is that correct? A.G.L.

A. Yes, that event, designed to draw tourists from points on this Island and abroad and including a number of varied attractions, was held in the summer of 1913. It was marred by the first fatal airplane accident in the history of this part of the province. On Aug. 6, a light plane, on floats, in which John Bryant had risen from the Inner Harbor, fell on the roof of a building on lower Cormorant Street and the pilot lost his life.

Accused Says Car Going Five MPH In Fatal Accident

Morey Fletcher, 20 of Metchosin, charged with motor manslaughter, testified in Assize Court today that he was not going more than five miles an hour when he struck 79-year-old John Anderson of Calgary, at Douglas and Yates Streets on September 4, 1954.

Mr. Anderson, who was crossing the pedestrian lane at the time, died of injuries shortly after he was struck by a car driven by the accused.

The case was expected to go to the jury late this afternoon.

Duncan Sees Itself As Others See it

The people of Duncan, V.I., were chortling along with many others in Canada over an article by McKenzie Porter in Maclean's Magazine describing the town as "The Last Stronghold of the Longstockings."

A few people in Duncan expressed the opinion that Porter was "somewhat imaginative" in his descriptions of the settlement's individualists, but the general view seemed to be summed up in the words of Major L. C. Rattray that it was a "lot of jolly nonsense."

Mr. Porter, interviewed today by telephone in his Vancouver office, upheld the article.

"I think all my statements were pretty well supported," he said. "We do pretty careful research."

Mayor J. C. Wragg was reported to have had a good laugh at being referred to by Mr. Porter as "that chirpy mayor," and Miss Monica Oldham suggested that the couple of bottles of home-made refreshments she gave Mr. Porter might be a clue to the "imaginative writing."

Still backing up every word in his article, Mr. Porter said

'How Dry I Am' Played By Old Lantern Decanter

By PENNY SAVER

Today in one of my favorite little shops I saw an item that had just arrived. A bar accessory that would please anyone. A square bottle, made of the wavy, thick glass you find in the huge glass balls from China, has a molding of burnished copper. Just around the edges, and forming a cage, this copper extends over the top in a lid. Then, there's a thin handle of the same metal.

The whole thing looks like an old-fashioned lantern. Pick up the "lantern" by its handle, and a little music box in the bottom plays "How Dry I Am."

This is one of the cleverest decanters I've come across. For the $11.25 you pay for it, you'll have fun every time you show it to someone.

In this same store, I spied a tiny rocking chair, no more than four inches high. The back and seat were padded and covered with a tiny patterned material. What is it? A complete unit for all your sewing needs, 'cause on either side of the chair itself, there's a ledge with two thread spools where you hook your spools of thread. You store the pins and needles on the padded surfaces, and from the front of the rocker unrolls a little tape measure. Made of simulated red maple, the arms and back are carved out of sort of like Dutch furniture. It really rocks, too. How much? Only 75 cents.

I have a weakness for little tads' toys, it seems. The ones I saw today were made in England, and have been a rage there for a long time.

Made of very soft foam rubber are faces, all painted and formed. By putting your hand at the back of the face, and moving your fingers, you can change the expressions of the toys. There are original faces of sea salts, soldiers, punchy fighters and several more, all with very comical features. By changing the contours and expressions on the foam faces, eventually, you're bound to form a face that resembles someone you know. Then the

In-Laws Treat Her As an Outsider

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, Ph.D.

There is no one who cannot be won over if a person uses the right tactics. In some cases the wisest thing to do is to use any tactics that will give the desired results.

(Q)—"A year ago I married a fine young man, and we have been blissfully happy. The one thorn in my side is his family. He is devoted to them and they to him. They are very nice to me but I always feel as if they are treating me somewhat as if I were an outsider. I am not sure whether they really approve of me or not."

"My mother-in-law, for example, has implied several times that my mother should have trained me to be a better cook than I know I am, and my sister-in-law is sometimes critical of my friends, though I try not to have them around when she is there. Should I just ignore them and not let it worry me, or should I try to keep away from my in-laws as much as possible?"

(A)—"Since your husband is so devoted to his family, and they to him, the worst thing you could do would be to turn a cold shoulder to them. Sooner or later that would lead to trouble between you and your husband."

You would be much smarter to concentrate on winning them over. Your mother-in-law, for example, might be more friendly if you saw her when your husband wasn't around. Why not invite her and your mother to your home for lunch or tea? Make special efforts to have everything attractive and tasty, and bend over backward to see that your mother-in-law enjoys herself. With your mother there, too, the older women may find a real basis of congeniality. This can help change your mother-in-law's attitude toward you.

Your sister-in-law may resent your not including her among your "friends." Instead of keeping them apart, invite your sister-in-law to join in your activities, and ask your best friends to see to it that she has a good time. If she feels that she is accepted and liked by your friends, I think you will find a marked change in her attitude toward you.

As a special service to our readers, Dr. Hurlock has written a 64-page booklet, "You and Your Problems." For your copy send 15 cents in coin with a self-addressed stamped envelope to this newspaper.

Correct Pair of Glasses Can Add to Your Beauty

When in New York city recently I talked with the head of one of the oldest and most reliable firms among those who make and fit eye glasses. They do nothing but fill prescriptions for glasses, and therefore have had vast experience in observing frames of different shapes on all kinds of faces. They are responsible and careful technicians but also like to see women buy glasses which are flattering to them.

If you wear glasses they are so much a part of your face that they can actually flatter you or detract greatly from your appearance. Here are some of the things the optician I talked with said.

If your nose is too long, your glasses should have a saddle bridge. This makes the nose appear much shorter. If your nose is too short or just average length, a keyhole bridge is the kind you should have. A saddle bridge is much broader than a keyhole bridge and is a different shape.

Short women do not look well in glasses which have the extreme uplift. You know what I mean, those that sweep upward at the outer corners. These are most attractive on tall women. The woman of average height should take an in-between type.

If you have a great deal of breadth at the temples avoid frames which are shallow. These make your face look even broader. You need some depth.

As a general rule any extreme face, a very round face, a very long one, or broad or square one, should be treated to glasses which are not extreme in style but a combination type.

Women should give as much thought to the selection of their eyeglasses as to the clothes they buy.

As this authority told me, it has not always been possible to fit women in the most becoming way. Until recently the eye had to be right in the centre of the lens, and of course this limited the possible shape of the frames. Today, however, the prescription can be filled and the eyes correctly fitted, without being right in the centre of the lens.

If you could afford it, you would enjoy having several pairs of glasses because there is such variety in colors and shapes. There are glasses which are appropriate for sports or office or dressy times.

Between Ourselves

By ELIZABETH FORBES

These blustery days of March with the wind knocking at the windows I keep expecting to see kites flying in the cloud-swept sky.

Once upon a time in Victoria, March was the month for kite flying. You'd see the frail paper affairs dancing and dipping over the trees as lads and lasses ran laughing across the fields holding tightly to yards and yards of string so the gay colored paper kites would sail high . . . and higher . . . until they were practically out of sight. Sometimes the string broke and the kites floated on to settle finally high in a tree or over the telephone wires.

Bessie

Torn and bedraggled they might be retrieved after hours of striving. Of course, they never looked the same again . . . they wobbled instead of dancing in the wind. But who cared . . . as long as they sailed. And as long as young legs could run stumbling across the humps and hollows of the good green fields.

In Victoria there are not many fields left now. Progress in the form of cement, brick and wood, has covered the green, daisy starred hummocks and hollows. Great power lines have replaced the few slender wires that once were main hazards to be avoided by the best kite-flyers. Even the trees have been cut down.

No doubt, if I started to delve I'd find there is an ordinance of some kind that forbids kite-flying in the city. So present-day children . . . if they have any thought of flying kites . . . must first find a way of getting out to the country where there are a few green fields left.

However, those of us who once upon a time DID fly kites in Victoria can still indulge in a few nostalgic memories at this season of the year.

Memories of the frail bamboo and rice paper kites that came from Japan (where kite-flying still is a festival occasion for small children, in and out of the cities). There were birds, bumble bees, dragon flies in brilliant blues, greens and pinks.

Memories, too, of shredded newspaper tails that had to be added. The longer the tails, the more securely they were tied to the kite, the better chance you had of seeing your treasure soar high above all the rest.

If you couldn't afford a bright-colored toy from Japan then you relied on the Mother of the family to come to the rescue. With sheets of stiff brown paper spread out on the kitchen floor and her sharp pair of scissors. Cutting and snipping, she would soon have a credible kite shaped. She'd make a good stiff paste from flour and water. Then two cedar kindling sticks, light and long, bound together in the shape of a cross. The brown paper was pasted securely to the sticks. The tail attached and then yards and yards of strong string . . . saved for just such an occasion. A loop at the end of the twine was placed over a small wrist so the kite would not fly away. Then, it was off to the big field next door for a trial run.

There always had to be an assistant to hold the kite steady while a certain amount of string was unwound . . . and to let go at the right moment when the kite-flyer started to run and the slack was taken up.

A good puff of March wind completed the operation. Away sailed the kite. Away ran the kite-flyer.

Who will ever forget kite-flying weather.

Marie Hardy, J. K. Medford Wed at Monday Ceremony

Heirloom pearls were worn by Marie I. Hardy at her wedding to John Kenneth Medford. The pearls were a gift of the groom, and had belonged to his grandmother.

Canon J. Biddle heard the vows exchanged in St. John's Anglican Church by the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hardy, 826 North Park Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. K. Medford, Springfield, Ore.

Seasonal flowers were placed in the church, and white ribbons marked the guest pews. Given in marriage by her father, the charming bride chose a gown of white satin fashioned with lace insets. Long sleeves tapered at her wrists, and a train of matching material added a formal note of beauty. Her veil of embroidered net was caught by a headress of mother of pearl. Hyacinths and red roses were in her cascade bridal bouquet.

Matron of honor, Mrs. J. Peterson, chose a ballerina-length nylon gown in soft blue, and carried a colonial bouquet of roses, carnations and white hyacinths. Bridesmaids, Mrs. E. Milliken and Mrs. A. Clark, were gowned in yellow brocade satin with net skirts and carried colonial bouquets. They wore headresses of flowers to match their bouquets. Little flower girl, Vicki Milliken, wore a blue net-over-taffeta frock, and flowered headress. She carried a basket of dainty spring flowers.

Cousin of the groom, Albert Medford, was best man, while ushers were Thomas Hardy, brother of the bride, and Jim Peterson, brother-in-law of the groom.

At a reception which followed in K of P Hall, the bridal couple were assisted in receiving guests by Mrs. Hardy in a blue flowered taffeta dress with navy accessories and corsage of pink carnations and heather, and Mrs. Medford, in a dress of pink lace with matching accessories and a corsage of white gardenia. The bride's table was centred with a lovely three-tier cake on a white lace cloth. Pink roses decorated the top tier, and pink carnations were placed on the table.

Robert Milliken, uncle of the bride, proposed the toast. For a honeymoon trip motoring through Washington and Oregon, the bride donned a blue knitted suit with pink accessories and a white orchid corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Medford will live in Springfield, Ore.

Seaweed for Baking

OSLO (CP)—Norway is shipping seaweed meal to a growing number of bakeries in Western Germany which are enriching their flour. The seaweed product contains many vitamins and food elements.

YAKLEY, Eng (CP)—Municipal clerk Mary Chamberlain complains water facilities are so poor in this Huntingdonshire village that it is impossible to have a good bath.

Mrs. Isabel MacKay, Canadian poetess who died at Vancouver in 1928, was also the author of several novels.

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Bess Barker
(Mother of 5)

A bit apprehensive about the arrival of that beautiful bundle of joy? That's understandable! Many a new mother gets all tense from trying too hard. It's helpful to remember that when you relax, most tasks are lightened, and when you put forth a serene manner, it increases baby's serenity. Remember too, that baby is an adaptable human being, and many a problem is solved by plain old-fashioned common sense, liberally seasoned with love.

Feeding tips for freshman parents:

- (1) Baby should always be held as nearly upright as is possible for comfort. He is less apt to swallow air when in a vertical position.
- (2) Hold bottle at such an angle that the nipple is always full of formula — another simple precaution against excessive air-swallowing.

Orange juice is usually recommended as soon as baby is well established on formula. Important facts to remember about Gerber's Strained Orange Juice: it is made from tree-ripened oranges, selected for uniformly high vitamin-C content, and mild, natural flavor. It is specially processed to remove most of the peel oil which insures easy digestibility. Carefully pasteurized for baby's protection, too.

New babies usually meet solid food for the first time in the form of cereal. There are good reasons for the popularity of Gerber's 5 Cereals—Rice, Barley, Oatmeal, Wheat and Mixed Cereal. They're famous for bland, but distinctive flavors, and an extra-smooth, pleasant-feeling texture. Pre-cooked and ready to serve, with milk, formula or other liquids. Last but not least, Gerber's 5 cereals are fortified with iron, calcium and B-vitamins; offer an abundance of energy-giving calories. Gerber-Ogilvie Baby Foods Limited, Niagara Falls, Canada.

Crab Timbales, Dill Sauce Make a Real Lenten Treat

LENTEN DISH—From Fisherman's Wharf in San Francisco comes this recipe for Crab Timbales with dill pickle sauce.

Fisherman's Wharf in San Francisco is world famous for its restaurants overlooking the fishing boats moored in the lagoon. Crab dishes are a specialty. Even though here at home we cannot always get fresh crab, we can use a fine brand for some of San Francisco's distinctive recipes.

As we are right in the middle of Lent, you'll no doubt be looking for a few new sea food and fish and meatless dishes. So let's begin with this crab recipe.

CRAB TIMBALES WITH DILL PICKLE SAUCE

Three eggs, slightly beaten; 1/2 teaspoon salt, freshly ground pepper; 2 tablespoons dill pickle liquid; 1/2 cup undiluted evaporated milk; 1 6 1/2-ounce can crabmeat.

Combine eggs, salt, pepper, pickle liquid and milk. Drain crabmeat, remove any cartilage. Flake crabmeat and add to egg-milk mixture. Pour into 6 greased timbales or custard cups. Place in a pan of hot water. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 35 to 40 minutes, or until timbales are firm. Unmold and serve with dill pickle sauce. (Makes 6 servings.)

Turgeon Against Extending 1 1/2 Rule to Big Shippers

OTTAWA (BUP)—The nation's top transportation system investigator today recommended against extending the one-and-a-half rule to agreed charges freight rates set by the railways for bulk shippers.

W. F. A. Turgeon, in a Royal Commission report on agreed charges tabled in the Commons today, said there were too many "difficulties" surrounding the practical application of such a measure.

Turgeon, who conducted a Royal Commission inquiry into the whole Canadian rail freight rate structure in 1951, pointed out the agreed charges practice as a one-man Royal Commission

Foundry Strike May Shut Ford

SARNIA, Ont. (BUP)—More than 260 employees of Holmes Foundry Limited went on strike today. The walkout threatened to close Ford of Canada plants in Windsor and Oakville.

The Sarnia plant produces engine blocks for Ford. The men, members of local 456 UAW-CIO, went on strike at midnight and set up picket lines in driving snow and wind.

They sought a 40-hour week with 48 hours take-home pay, plus an improved group life insurance plan and other fringe benefits. Arthur Last, international representative for the union, said the union is prepared for a long strike if necessary.

TODAY'S MARKET SUMMARIES

Westons Big Mover In Industrial Climb

Metals of all kinds were in demand—steels, coppers and golds—and most major divisions joined in the rise with hearty accord.

Asbestos, Industrial Acceptance and Algoma each lost a major fraction.

Strongest advances were made in the miscellaneous industrials. Papers, base metals, senior oils, carriers and banks were slightly better. Utilities and steels were shaded.

Mines fluctuated in a 5-10 cents range. Western oils were dull.

Bying entered wheat on a forecast for windy weather in the winter wheat belt, which could cause some soil blowing. Export business also helped. Exports also were a factor in an advance in soybeans.

Logger Found Guilty Of Assaulting Wife

Warned by Magistrate at Trial in Duncan; Will Serve Three-Month Jail Sentence

DUNCAN—Convicted of assault causing grievous bodily harm to his wife, Clare Edward Hewitt, 36-year-old logger, was sentenced in police court here Tuesday by Magistrate A. C. Sutton to three months' imprisonment.

$12,000 Fire Wrecks Ranch

COOMBS (CP)—A $12,000 fire raged unchecked to destroy chicken houses, other buildings and equipment at the William August poultry ranch despite a bucket brigade formed by neighbors.

But their efforts were credited with preventing flames reaching the house. Mr. and Mrs. August were not home at the time.

The fire was believed to have started in the oil-heated brooder, lit in preparation for 2,500 chicks due in a few days.

Arrowsmith Cabin Memorial for Late Mountaineer

ALBERNI (CP)—Plans are under way here to complete a practical memorial on the rugged slopes of Mt. Arrowsmith to the late Ralph Rosseau, who died in a mountain accident last summer.

The memorial will be a cabin started by Rosseau before his death. At the request of his wife, it will be used by young people's outdoor clubs.

Rosseau, school principal and mountaineer, was an enthusiastic worker with young people's organizations.

Indian Remains May Be Placed In Museum

Remains of three children found on Valdes Island and identified by A. L. Kendall of Boat Harbor as relics from a Haida Indian burial ground, likely will be turned over to the Victoria Museum, according to RCMP.

The bones are now in the custody of Const. Gordon Graham, Ganges, Salt Spring Island.

An RCMP official here said no action will be taken pending receipt of Const. Graham's report, but that the condition of the relics will determine their outcome.

"We also are duty bound to wait for orders from relatives," he said. "There is little likelihood of this happening, but if it does we will re-inter the remains with all due respect."

The bones were found at the foot of a cliff by two Indian trappers.

Mr. Kendall, an amateur anthropologist, said they had been in the burial ground 150 years, and that he had covered them with a canvas three years ago after they had been disturbed.

The remains consisted of the mummified body of a child of about 10 years, and parts of the skeletons of two younger children.

Planning Chairman Resigns; Mainland Expert in Nanaimo

NANAIMO—This city's growing pains seem destined to be borne for some time yet, according to the Town Planning Commission that has been in operation for nearly a year with little to show for the fact.

Frank Wilfred, Jr., resigned as chairman Tuesday night at a special meeting called to hear Vancouver's G. Sutton-Brown on town planning. Mr. Wilfred said he was obliged to resign because of pressure of his own business which required full attention at this time.

Mr. Brown came to Nanaimo from Vancouver on loan for the day in an effort to provide useful information on town planning problems.

Ald. Mrs. Alan Hall, representing city council at the meeting, asked if the Town Planning Commission "shouldn't give a reason why applicants are turned down after asking for rezoning. Our council needs directing."

Mr. Brown said: "You must give a reason for the turn-down, and you should be able to come up with an alternative site if at all possible. Town planning is for the benefit of the city as a whole."

He recommended that Nanaimo town planners might benefit from a visit to the planner at West Vancouver, where considerable progress is being made with about the same population as Nanaimo.

Mr. Brown said there were practically no graduate town planners available since there were only four graduates from UBC in 1953, none last year, and only three graduating in April.

RESTORATION PLANNED

Abandoned Church Near Duncan Memorial to Valiant Builder

Efforts of Duncan Chamber of Commerce to restore the famous little stone church on Comiak Hill at the mouth of Cowichan River will revive a well-known and well-loved story of the settling of the white man in the district.

Much photographed and more famous as a semi-ruin than as a functioning church building, it stands as a monument to Rev. Peter Rondeault who single-handedly was responsible for its being built.

Rev. Lempit, OMI, first began the baptism of Indians on the river delta, but Fr. Rondeault founded the mission.

Born in St. Norbert, Que., in 1824, he arrived in Victoria intent upon working among Indians. Being kept in Victoria he went to his bishop, Mgr. Modeste Demers, and told him that unless he was given his Indians he, Peter Rondeault, was returning from whence he came!

The good bishop knew his man, so took no offense but sent him on his way.

PADDLED TO PARISH

Fr. Rondeault set off to Saanich with a gun, a sack of flour and his breviary. There he was given a canoe and paddled to his new home. He was befriended by an Indian, Gabriel Tsulchamet, who sheltered him while he built his own home.

He soon wanted a stone church and enlisted Indians who gave their time and good will.

Nearby Komikien (note the change in spelling) Hill lent the stone, and a cannonball fired at the Indians in anger some years before was used to break the stone. Workmen were paid with proceeds of butter sold from Fr. Rondeault's farm, hence the nickname, "Butter Church."

In November, 1870, it was blessed by Bishop Demers, and served the area for 10 years.

Although Fr. Rondeault was a missionary first, he was a farmer and carpenter second. Gradually he improved his own position, and worked his farm to great advantage. Naturally he was not always dressed in accepted clerical garb, and at times a third party was required to convince strangers that they were indeed talking with the priest in charge.

There were several reasons for the church being abandoned, one of them being that Fr. Rondeault had done his work too well. The gospel had spread, and the little stone edifice was no longer in a central location. It also was inconvenient for nuns at St. Ann's Convent, established in 1864, and furthermore it is understood that clear title to the site could not be had. As a result, a frame building was constructed at a more central location, and was blessed in January, 1880.

In 1900 an addition was built,

Colwood Church Celebrates 40th Anniversary

COLWOOD — The 40th anniversary of St. John the Baptist Church, Colwood, was celebrated at Colwood Hall with a dinner attended by 250 parishioners and guests.

Special guests were Rev. H. Pearson, Burnaby, first vicar of the parish; Rev. Harry Greenhalgh of Port Alberni and Mrs. Greenhalgh; and Canon C. W. Downer and Mrs. Downer.

Canon H. J. Wickens, rural dean, extended congratulations to the group, and messages were given by Canon George Hiddle of Victoria and Rev. H. M. Bolton, Metchosis.

Guests were welcomed by Rev. H. J. Jones, vicar, and Mrs. Jones.

Vocal solos were sung by Mrs. J. Flatman, accompanied by Mr. Jones, and H. Ashbee entertained with two monologues.

Younger children were entertained with supper and films in the parish hall, where J. Horner and J. Flatman were in charge.

TZOUHALEM BURIAL

His little tomb can be seen at the rear of the existing St. Ann's Church in Tzouhalem, and still is an object of veneration.

Although not in use, the background and beauty of the little stone church kept interest in it alive. The federal government donated funds at one time for its restoration, and it was last re-roofed in 1912.

Of late years its chief claim to fame has been as a photographic subject — almost as popular as Peggy's Cove, N.S., although it appeared in Ripley's "Believe It Or Not" under the erroneous caption of a church in which no service was ever held.

Odd stories are told of it, but most of them are false. It merely outlived its usefulness as the Cowichan Mission, embraced a larger and larger territory through the valley.

By FREEMAN KING
District Notes: Sight-seeing trip which embraced the locks and floating bridge was enjoyed by four patrol leaders who were guests of the USAF at Sand Point when they visited Seattle for the conference. The four were billeted with scouts from troop 2.

Assistant Commissioner Martin Dawson was presented with his long service medal by district Commissioner George Barr at a district scouters meeting in headquarters.

Regular meeting of the district executive committee will be held Thursday in headquarters at 8. Plans are being made to hold a camporee early in May.

Third Victoria Group: Walton Davis was invested as a scout at a meeting attended by district Scoutmaster Roy Brain and Dr. V. Fanderlik. At the pack meeting, district Cubmaster Harry Ward saw the boys perform a jungle dance.

Mount Talmie Group: Scoutmaster Dean Young and nine scouts spent the week-end in the Alberni Valley fishing in Sproat Lake and camping at Stamp Falls.

Windsor Park Group: "B" pack, Mark Banfield, Wesley Adams, Noel Wardell, Douglas Brighton and Peter Roberts were invested as wolf cubs. Allan Ferguson and Stan Daniels were made sixers of the pack.

Parkdale Group: To help raise funds for scouts who will attend the Jamboree, the group committee held a "Games Night" in St. Mark's Church Hall on Tuesday.

First Baptist Group: A gardener's badge was awarded to Ken Ward and artist's badge to Douglas Normandine.

Chinese Group: Patrol leaders ran the group meeting Friday in the absence of the scoutmaster. House orderly and swimmer's badges were awarded to Ronnie Lim at the pack meeting. David Lee received a collector's badge.

Mesachie Lake Group: The group has pledged $50 to help bring a scout from overseas to the Jamboree. A sale of cookies by the committee realized $21.

Campbell River Group: Scoutmaster Thomas Foster has completed a first aid course. 18 scouts qualifying for the first aid badge.

Other badges presented were: Eric Raynor, religion and life; second class, John Hemmingsen and Bob Peterson; fireman's, Larry Dingsdale, Ted McGregor, Eric Raynor, George Geddis and John Hemmingsen; ambulance man's, George Geddis, Larry Dingsdale and Ted McGregor; boat builder, Eric Raynor, and swimmer's, John Hemmingsen.

More Reserves Seen By Commodore Adams
Expanded reserve divisions in the Royal Canadian Navy are foreseen by Commodore Kenneth F. Adams, commander of divisions.

In Victoria for an inspection of HMCS Malahat Monday, Commodore Adams said facilities are now ready to train increasing numbers of reserves.

"A sailor cannot be trained overnight," he said. "The reserve navy is an essential training ground to prepare for an emergency, when regular forces must be increased quickly."

TV Aerials Require Permits--Oosterink
Buyers or dealers who install television rooftop aerials without first obtaining a permit from the city building department may be fined, and may have to dismantle the job and do it all over again.

Building Inspector J. W. Oosterink said Monday only 60 to 70 permits have been taken out each month recently for antenna installation. Yet television sales in Greater Victoria totaled 1,600 in December, 800 in January and 600 in February.

Estimating on the basis of population, about half of these would be installed in Victoria. As well as a fine of double the cost of the permit ($125 for antennas costing less than $100 and $250 for those costing more), the person who does the installation without a permit is liable for damages incurred through a faulty job.

Mr. Oosterink says one case occurred where an aerial was blown down and landed across

Choral Singing Praised By Festival Adjudicator

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

While all sessions of the Greater Victoria Music Festival are interesting, evening concerts are enjoyable, evening concerts continue to climax the day-long events with the pleasure and satisfaction provided sometimes by considerably higher priced musical affairs.

All who are following the festival as active supporters are aware that these daily climaxes will be given a super climax Friday night, when the final grand-concert will take place in First United Church.

For this event there is a contest for male choirs scheduled, with Masonic, Arion Club and Meistersingers taking part.

Planists from senior and open classes will be competing for the prized Victoria City Medalion and the B.C. Electric Rose Bowl, emblem of outstanding vocal achievement, will see a three-way competition. There will also be a number of "adjudicators' choice" performances, representing the cream of previous sessions.

DOUBLE 94
Tuesday evening's concert at First United, again emphasized that Victoria is a city of fine choral music. The ladies' choir of First United Church, only entrants in a grade A female voice choir, topped the high marking gained by the whole choir on Monday night, receiving a double 94 for their two selections.

A closely contested class was that for grade B female voice choir in which only four marks separated the three competitors. Royal Jubilee Hospital Nurses' Glee Club were awarded a total of 173 marks; Emmanuel Ladies' Choir, 170, and Lake Cowichan Ladies' Choir, 169.

"There has been splendid choral singing throughout the festival, from schools, churches and choral societies," declared Glyndwr Jones, in his adjudication. "They are a joy to hear."

GLORIOUS PRAISE
He gave glowing praise to Esquimalt High School Glee Club for their fine performance in the contest for high school choirs, mixed voices. Receiving a 90 mark for the first test pieces and 86 for their own selection, they totaled 176. Victoria High School received 169 and Mount View 166.

Lawrence Reid, winner of the piano class for Beethoven performance was the featured solo artist of the evening.

At the twilight session Tuesday the following results were attained: Vocal duet, 17 to 21 years — Claire Stevenson and Wendy Ellen Ashby, 73. Baritone solo, Grade A — Henry S. Holman, 156. Dramatic soprano, Grade A — Adele H. Gault, 164. Oratorio solo, male voices — Alan Husband, 84.

In speech arts classes Mrs. Eileen Parker described the choice of selection excellent throughout. She was particularly impressed with the work of little Jeannie Belcher, who won class 212 for girls 12 years and under. Granting her 181 total marks, Mrs. Parker commented, "This was excellent in mood and development of resonance. Her inflections were well done and she really painted word pictures."

Mrs. Parker considered it was a revelation of lovely natural ability well defined and trained. Second in this class of 10 was Diane McKenzie, with 180.

Other results were:

Boys, 14 years and under: Barry Bourque, 173; Neil McKenzie, 170. Girls, 16 years and under: Jean Bourque, 165. Boys, 16 years and under: Tom Cooke, 159. ## Graham's Crusade Gets Mixed Reaction

GLASGOW, Scotland (AP)—Billy Graham is winning a mixed reception from Glasgow's newspapers, but the American evangelist is packing the Scots in for his evangelical crusade.

His second meeting Tuesday night drew another capacity 15,000 persons to Kelvin Hall. As at the crusade which opened Monday night, hundreds filled down the aisle in answer to Graham's call to "make your decisions for Christ."

"One out of every four persons in this great hall will be dead in 10 years from now if statistics run their normal course, and they will," the evangelist told the throng of worshippers. "There may not be time for another call like this, so come now."

Newspaper reaction to Graham's first appearance in Scotland has ranged from hearty approval to opinion that his platform manner is not for the Scots. Some papers sent their drama critics to his first meeting, some their religious editors and others their entire editorial staffs.

These are some of the comments: Angus Shaw in the Glasgow Evening News: "I find his supercharged evangelism almost naive and vaguely embarrassing. His gospel salesmanship has a gloss that dazzles and dazzles, but it is strangely dehydrated compared with the warm, down-to-earth humanity of the churches of my youth."

Glasgow Evening Citizen: "The great audience . . . arrived in much the mood they would be in for a concert. They left grave and thoughtful. Billy Graham clearly got home his message."

Glasgow Evening Times: "Many who have pondered over the crusade will be relieved to learn that it is not at all a dramatic meeting. It is a service which some at least will remember as intellectually uninspiring and possibly because of their own conjecturing something of an anticlimax."

Final Government Offer Spurned In Westview Tax Sale Squabble

A "final offer" by the provincial government, in the controversial Westview tax sale home issue, has been rejected by H. J. Parry of Cranberry Lake.

Mr. Parry bought the $4,000 home, owned by Mrs. Mary Booth, now of Vancouver, for $30.60 at a tax sale two years ago. It had been put on the block without Mrs. Booth's knowledge to collect $16.80 in overdue school taxes.

Although the sale was perfectly legal, the issue reached the floor of the Legislature and the government finally offered to buy back the home for $1,000.

But Mr. Parry's lawyer, M. M. McFarlane, says his client has "no intention" of accepting the $1,000 offer.

"As far as the Parry's are concerned they intend to keep the property," he said. "It's up to the government now if it wants to make a (reimbursement) payment to Mrs. Booth."

Mulligan Ordered To Institute New Promotion Scheme

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police Chief Walter Mulligan was instructed by police commission Tuesday to take immediate steps instituting an interim promotion plan for his force.

The commission also told the chief to start the "essential steps" of a permanent promotion plan "at his earliest convenience."

The action was taken after commissioners studied the re-drafted interim and permanent plans drawn up by a special promotion committee.

The promotion system has been a bone of contention between the union and the chief for years.

Detective Fred Dougherty said the union was "very gratified" at the commission's decision.

Guaranteed Annual Wage Plan Could Color Lives of Millions

By REY W. BRUNE

DETROIT (UP)—The guaranteed annual wage plan which the CIO United Auto Workers is demanding from the automobile industry could affect the lives of nearly everyone in North America in one way or another.

The effect might come through huge disruptive strikes striking idling hundreds of thousands in the automobile industry and supplier firms.

It might come through revolutionary changes in employee-employer relationships—if the union wins its case. In that event, the plan almost certainly would spread to other fields. It could spread through the entire industrial setup.

Those changes, some say, could wreck the economy, bankrupt even the biggest firms. Others say the changes could help spur the economy to its greatest heights.

The plan certainly will be a widely-discussed topic in the next two and one-half months while the union bargains for it with General Motors and Ford, the firms which produce three of every four cars sold today.

Exactly what is the plan? It is a labor contract under which employers guarantee work on a year-round basis.

The paychecks would keep flowing even if there isn't any work. Some firms have been tried many times. Some of the plans go back 60 years. More than 190 separate plans have been proposed. But none like the UAW plan. It is more sweeping in scope, more definite in "guarantee" than anything ever tried.

Nunn-Bush Shoe Co., for example, guarantees 52 weekly paychecks, but the size of the checks isn't guaranteed. Procter & Gamble guarantees workers 48 weeks of work a year but the number of hours isn't guaranteed.

Hormel guarantees 52 weeks of pay of 38 hours a week. But the plan ignores seasonal up and downs. Overtime work in one week isn't paid for at premium rates. The extra hours of pay are held up and the pay met out to fill out short work weeks.

What the UAW wants is much broader. It wants a guarantee of 52 weeks of work a year, with 40 hours pay in all 52 weeks. Overtime in any week would be dumped on top at premium pay.

For every two weeks a worker as at his job, he would pile up a guarantee of one week's pay against layoffs. Workers with two years' seniority would have a 52-week guarantee. This is the top guarantee.

The exact amount a worker would get would depend on his pay scale. Part of the pay would come from unemployment compensation. The company would make up the difference to give him the same "take-home" pay.

Strikes in supplier firms which cause material shortages would not cut off guarantee payments.

The union also contends management should plan on maintaining pay checks for its workers in case of "acts of god" such as fires, storm damage and the like.

A worker who was laid off would have to register with the state unemployment office and take a "suitable" job if one was available. If the replacement paid him less, the employer would have to make up the difference. That is the broad outline of how the plan the UAW proposes would work. The union has said it is open to "satisfactory" changes.

Layoffs long have plagued the automobile industry. The biggest selling surge has come in the spring. Slackened demand later in the year has meant layoffs, short work weeks and loss of pay for auto workers. The union believes the plan can solve this.

The automobile industry has kept its views on this specific plan to itself so far. Increasingly, in recent weeks, its spokesmen have told how management has worked to stabilize employment to meet seasonal trends. It has pointed out that it has shifted model introduction into early fall and taken other steps to minimize seasonal slumps.

Both sides have their arguments ready. This is the plan the argument will be about. The results of the argument could affect millions.

Halifax Has No Room To Build More Homes

By DON HOYT

Canadian Press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP)—House construction here is nearing saturation in the wake of a land famine.

Halifax planners and officials of the Community Planning Association agree that the building boom is just about over. The city, almost surrounded by the waters of the North West Arm and Bedford basin, "has reached its limits," says Mrs. F. Carl Hudson, CPAC branch secretary.

W. A. G. Snook, city planner, admits that "in the foreseeable future, the city will have to decide whether to annex land or build upward."

LAND PRICES HIGH

Since the end of the Second World War, land prices have risen by leaps and bounds. One man sold for $4,500 property he bought in 1946 for $750. Today, with only 1,000 lots left, people in the city of 100,000 are asking "where do we go from here?"

Mrs. Hudson contends Halifax aldermen "don't feel the thing is important enough to do anything about." Their attitude, she says, is: "If you can't find a place to live in the city, move to the country."

But Mr. Snook says the city is working on several schemes to meet the problem of land shortage. While admitting "there aren't many cities in the same spot," he denies the situation is acute.

"It isn't too hard to find an apartment," he says. But high rents, ranging upward from $90 a month for a four-room furnished flat, leave prospective homesteaders little money to save for the down payment on their own homes.

REPLACEMENT PLAN

Part of the answer may lie in a projected program of replacing antiquated slum houses with modern apartment buildings.

Within six months, Mr. Snook hopes to have a concrete plan for erasing some "blighted" areas. An earlier scheme ran into stiff opposition from persons who preferred living in their own homes, regardless of their condition, rather than become apartment-house tenants.

"The people think they're losing the security of living in their own home," said Mr. Snook.

There are other obstacles blocking further home construction projects.

Nation's Newsprint Production Climbs

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian production of newsprint in February was higher than in the same month last year, but the increased output was almost wholly taken up by overseas and American buyers.

Figures issued today by the Newsprint Association of Canada show February production was 479,286 tons compared with 457,927 tons in February, 1954.

Canadian consumption, 33,003 tons, increased by only 2,900 tons. At the same time exports rose to 431,057 tons from 407,511 tons with the bulk of the 23,000-ton increase going to Europe. Sales to Ireland and the United Kingdom—28,535 tons in February this year—were 10,961 tons above last year's level.

'DEAF' SOLDIER MISSED 66-DEATH PLANE CRASH

HONOLULU, T.H. (UP)—Rain and rugged terrain today hampered the efforts of crews attempting to recover the remains of 66 persons killed in Hawaii's worst aviation tragedy.

Twenty-two bodies were removed yesterday, but efforts were halted by bad weather and the fact that parts of the wreckage were still too hot to approach—nearly 14 hours after the crash.

PVT. Robert Kemp, 37-year-old former prisoner of war from Davenport, Iowa, missed the ill-fated flight by accident. He was sitting in a cafeteria when his flight was announced and he failed to hear the announcement. He was flown to California on a later flight.

Sask. Farmers' Union Torn by Dissention

Constitutional Issues Threaten Future Of 100,000-Member Body; Officials Fired

By SHERMAN ERICKSON

SASKATOON (CP)—A split at the top has shaken the powerful Saskatchewan Farmers' Union to the grass roots level.

As officials of the 100,000-member organization prepared today for a meeting expected to be hectic, some expressed concern at the future of the union which has done much to aid Saskatchewan's wheat farmers. Constitutional issues are the root of a dispute which has forced the resignation of the union's president and seen the firing and rehiring of other top officials. Factions were forming on all sides in advance of a convention next June to choose a new president.

Former president Fred Woloshyn of North Battleford fired

Stewart Theissen as acting secretary for what Mr. Woloshyn termed incompetence. He then appointed Mrs. Bernice Norman, volatile president of the women's association, as secretary-treasurer.

RESIGNED ORDERS

The union executive and the provincial board promptly resigned Mr. Woloshyn's orders and appointed Mr. Theissen secretary-treasurer. There was nothing personal in this, the two bodies explained; the president had their "full loyalty and support." It was simply that appointment of a secretary-treasurer was the prerogative of the executive.

Mr. Woloshyn promptly resigned. C. P. "Chris" Hansen of Theodore, a Woloshyn supporter, moved up from the vice-presidency to take over as president until a leadership convention could be called.

The convention has been called for June 14 and this, too, has caused dispute. A faction led by J. L. Phelps, SFU president from the union's founding until the five-year constitutional limit prevented him from running again last December, wants the convention to be held within the constitutional limit of three weeks—April 14.

The union executive today will hear groups opposed to and supporting the recent actions of the executive. Mr. Hansen has said he expects a "rough time" at the meeting. He warns that if personalities become involved a "dogfight" would result that would set the SFU back two or three years.

WITHOUT JOB

Mrs. Norman, of Paddockwood, is left without a job in the SFU. Last fall she was appointed organizational director. When she was shorn of her other position, she was also ousted from this post.

Mr. Theissen and Mrs. Norman are seen in most quarters as the crux of the dispute. Mr. Woloshyn charged that Theissen was incompetent as secretary and W. J. Ferguson of Radville, second vice-president, has stated that the trouble arose because Mrs. Norman took full command of the Saskatchewan headquarters and insisted that Mr. Theissen do everything her way.

On the result of the forthcoming convention depends the future power and prestige of the Saskatchewan Farmers' Union. Officials admit that membership sank to a record low last year due in large part to the crop failure.

Students in B.C. Schools Save $60,000

VANCOUVER (CP)—More than 3,000 British Columbia youngsters are saving during school years to help put themselves through university.

Forty schools are participating in a plan known as the Credit Unions Schools Savings Clubs. The idea began eight years ago when a small group on Hornby Island started saving from paper routes, grass-cutting, wood-chopping and so on. Richard Marufet, director of the clubs, says the children have saved more than $60,000. He explained that actual savings, though small, indicate whether the youngster is a good credit risk.

Parents and teachers who are supervising the plan said they were delighted with the results. "It gives the children a remarkable sense of responsibility at an early age," said one principal.

Court Remands Two Accused In TV Case

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two former officers of Industrial Radio Electric Enterprise Ltd. were remanded until next month when they appeared in police court Monday to face 15 charges arising out of their activities in the now-bankrupt television firm.

J. H. Jordan, named as former president, was remanded to April 6. E. V. Lumley, named as a former director, was remanded to April 4.

Each faces seven charges under the Securities Act. Jordan also faces one charge under the Criminal Code.

The code charge alleges Jordan concurred in circulating or publishing a prospectus which he knew to be false with intent to induce members of the public to become shareholders.

Five of the Securities Act charges allege false statements in a prospectus filed with the Superintendent of Brokers in Victoria, and the other two accuse omission of material particulars from the prospectus.

Press Ordered Not to Publish Trial Evidence

Manson Fears Jury Prejudice

VANCOUVER (CP)—Press and radio reporters Tuesday were ordered not to publish certain evidence at the trial of Donald Cathro, 26, one of four men charged with the robbery-slaying of a storekeeper here Jan. 6.

The order was issued by Mr. Justice A. M. Manson in Assize Court, who said:

"I direct that any evidence of statements made by this accused be not published until the last trial. My reason for doing this has already been communicated to representatives of press and radio and similar directions will be given in subsequent trials."

Earlier, he had cautioned the press to exercise discretion in coverage of the trial.

PREJUDICE?
He explained that statements to be read at Cathro's trial could conceivably prejudice the minds of jury panels in subsequent trials. He asked that the press refrain from publishing any account that dealt with the other suspects.

The others, Eng Git Lee, 27; Bew Chow, 44, and a 17-year-old youth, will be given separate trials.

The four were charged with murder in the strangulation death of Ah Wing following a holdup raid on his store.

Two Charges Bring $75 Fine to Driver
Total fine of $75 or 10 days in jail was imposed on Albert Edward Williams, 1330 Bond, when he pleaded guilty in city police court Tuesday to charges of careless driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Court was told the accused was involved in an accident on March 13 at Pandora and Vancouver and failed to stop. Total damages were $900.

Magistrate Henry C. Hall will decide possible license suspension March 29.

RICHARD FAN APPEALS TO QUEEN

Reverberations of Rocket Reach Buckingham Palace

MONTREAL (CP)—A cable to the Queen asking Her Majesty to intercede on behalf of Maurice (Rocket) Richard was sent Tuesday by a Montreal Canadiens hockey fan.

Managing director Frank Selke of the Canadiens said Tuesday night he knows the fan and his name but preferred not to release it. He said the cable asked Her Majesty to request Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League to reinstate Richard.

The Rocket was suspended by Campbell because of a rampage he staged on Boston Garden ice March 13.

Selke also said that Prince Charles will soon get a uniform—his size—of Montreal Canadiens and a note from four-year-old Normand Richard saying he hopes the two of them will some day play for the Montreal National Hockey League club.

The uniform and note will be sent along with the gold-encased puck with which Normand's father scored the 400th goal of his NHL career last November.

'Flu Sees Heavy Absenteeism In Most Interior B.C. Schools

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

More children in northern interior B.C. are absent from school with influenza but the epidemic appears to be waning in the southern Okanagan area.

The position improved on Vancouver Island during the week-end. The outbreak began late in January at Port Alberni, 130 miles northwest of Victoria.

School attendance at Quesnel, 80 miles south of Prince George, was cut to half Tuesday.

The junior-senior high school reported 238 of the 535 pupils absent. Seven teachers were also ill. At Quesnel elementary school, 155 out of 346 children were absent. In West Wye, 132 of the elementary school's 332 pupils were sick.

The district board decided against closing schools as all students had been exposed to infection.

From Penticton, the South Okanagan health unit reported a drop in absenteeism.

Tuesday, 159 of the Penticton junior-senior high school's enrollment of 1,050 did not report. On the peak day, March 17, 218 pupils were away from school between two and three times the normal absentee rate.

Measles and chickenpox, along with influenza, have caused lower attendance rates at primary and elementary schools.

Very few patients had been admitted to hospitals.

Dr. D. A. Clarke, director of the South Okanagan health unit, cautioned against youngsters returning to classes too soon.

"In some cases they have suffered a relapse," he said.

The man who loved dogs...

"BOB MARTIN'S"—it's a household name today. How did it start? The story begins with one man, a man who loved dogs.

The late Robert William Martin spent a lifetime in the study and care of dogs. He knew that show-dogs had to be fit to win. Thus was formulated what he was later to term a "condition powder" which brought dogs into perfect condition and kept them there.

Breeders used this preparation with such success that early in this century it was decided to make the preparation available to the public.

Today, from the Bob Martin laboratories at Southport, England, Condition Tablets are dispatched to nearly every part of the globe.

Why do millions of dogs throughout the world have their Bob Martin's regularly? Why should your dog need conditioning?

Well, for one thing, it is almost impossible for you to give him an ideal diet these days. And the exercise you give him may not always be enough. For these reasons, the average dog is not thoroughly fit. That is why you so often see such symptoms as listlessness, loss of appetite, excessive scratching and poor coat. They're all signs of loss of condition well known to the experienced dog-owner.

WHAT'S IN BOB MARTIN'S?
Bob Martin's Condition Tablets contain liver, which supplies minerals needed by the body, vitamins A and D and vitamins of the B group. These vitamins and minerals are vitally necessary for doggy good health and they are the ones your dog often doesn't get in his food. By improving his appetite and making sure he gets the full nourishment from his food, and by toning-up the dog's whole system, they provide a natural safeguard against loss of condition.

Have a look at your dog! Do you see any of the danger signals given below?

If your dog is listless, moody or lacking in energy; if he leaves his dinner half finished or eats it without enthusiasm; if his coat looks lifeless, dull and thin, or if he scratches a great deal; then he's out of condition.

Deal with this loss of condition at once, before it seriously affects his health! Give Bob Martin's Condition Tablets regularly.

When you see the difference this simple treatment makes, then ask yourself:

Is my dog brim full of energy, bursting with high spirits?

Does he wolf down his dinner and leave the plate as clean as a whistle?

Has he a splendid coat, bright eyes and a cold damp nose?

If you can say "Yes" to all three, then you know he's in perfect condition...

...and that's Bob Martin condition!

After the Tears Had Dried

These two teams of under eight-year-old piano duettists in the Greater Victoria Music Festival, through a slight misfortune, became a thoroughly mixed quartet, Tuesday. From left they are: Ian Chard, Lynda Ross-Jones, Patricia Kachenoski and Elaine Daniels. (Times photo.)

Music and not drama is the subject of the present festival in Victoria, but as a music festival it is not without its drama.
At St. John's Hall Tuesday in a class for piano duet, eight years and under, a near-tragedy was played out with a cast of three little girls and a very young man.
It all began when one of the girls got lost, and it ended with tears, temperament and some plain speaking on the part of the young man. The young man—Ian Chard—arrived punctually for his 9 a.m. appointment. But his partner—Patricia Kachenoski—was late, (as it is asserted women always are!)

THE POWER OF POSITIVE THINKING For Young People

CHAPTER VIII WHY WORRY?

What is worry? It is simply an unhealthy and destructive mental habit. If you have it, you were not born with it; you acquired it. And since you can change any habit, you can cast worry from your mind. So let's start breaking your worry habit at once.

Haven't you often heard a person say, "I am almost sick with worry," and then add with a laugh, "But I guess worry never really makes you ill."

But that is where he is wrong. Worry can make you ill. A doctor recently stated that there is an epidemic of fear and worry in this country. "All doctors," he declared, "are having cases of illness brought on directly by fear and aggravated by worry."

What worry can do to you is indicated by the original meaning of the word itself. It comes from an old Anglo-Saxon word meaning to "choke." If someone were to put his fingers around your throat and press hard, cutting off your air supply, he would be doing to you dramatically what you do to yourself over a long period of time by worry. You choke your abilities, your health, your creative powers.

Imagination is a source of fear, but imagination may also be a cure of fear. Your little brother or sister possesses an imaginative skill superior to your own. You've seen him stop crying because your mother has kissed the spot that hurt. Imagination is not simply the use of fancy. The word imagination derives from the idea of using images or pictures; you form an image or mental picture either of fear or of release from fear. If your little niece is afraid of a dog, she can be talked out of her fear by being told the dog is only trying to be friends, like

QUEEN, CHURCHILL IN LONG SESSION

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill stayed so long at Buckingham Palace during an audience with Queen Elizabeth II Tuesday night he immediately revived all the rumors about his expected retirement.

He called a cabinet meeting today, and the immediate speculation was he would outline a time-table for his retirement and for the British general elections expected by this fall.

The Queen left 56 minutes after Churchill arrived—an unusually long audience—but Churchill stayed another 24 minutes. It was believed he was discussing details of his retirement with the Queen's private secretary since Elizabeth must be informed first.

The top-hatted Churchill gave no hint when he emerged through the wrought iron gates to the cheers of 100 persons. He entered his limousine, popped horn-rim glasses on his nose and began thumbing through a newspaper as he drove off to No. 10 Downing Street.

The newspapers were largely concerned with the possibility of his retirement, and the pro-Labor Daily Mirror pleaded in an editorial for him to "put the Tories out of their misery and announce today when he is going to retire."

It also asked that he "let the nation know straightaway if there is to be a spring election or not."

The Daily Sketch urged Churchill when and if he retires to make a non-political farewell speech on television. "This would be TV's finest hour," the Sketch said. Churchill was expected to announce his retirement in two or three weeks.

Attlee Saves Bevan

Leader Sponsors Delay Motion

LONDON (UP)—Fiery left-winger Aneurin Bevan was saved from immediate expulsion from the British Labor Party today by former prime minister Clement Attlee, his bitter party opponent.

Attlee, the party leader whose authority Bevan had defied, asked the national executive committee to reprimand the Welshman rather than expel him.

Attlee sponsored a motion, which barely carried by a 14 to 13 vote, under which the executive committee decided to set up a special subcommittee of eight members to interview Bevan and explore his future attitude.

The Attlee move barely saved Bevan's political neck, for a time at least. Last week the parliamentary labor party "withdrew the whip" from Bevan in the House of Commons, making him a political outcast there—a man isolated without party recognition in parliament.

If the national executive committee had ousted him today, he would have become a man without a party.

But Attlee's proposal squeezed through, delaying the bitter internal struggle which would have broken out in the party if Bevan had been ousted.

INTERVIEW

The subcommittee interview with Bevan will be held in the next few days, and the group then will report back to the national executive. That body then will hold a special meeting to decide on further action.

Thus, the threat of expulsion still hangs over Bevan, but the uncertainty shown by the 28-member executive committee's delay represented a moral victory for him.

Saskatchewan Snow Blocks Main Roads

By JIM PEACOCK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Central Canada counted its loss in dead, injured and dollars today in the wake of its worst storm since hurricane Hazel claimed 76 lives in a wicked sweep last October.

In many southern Ontario areas, the storm was described by old-timers as the worst in memory. Its human toll—three were known dead early today, two were missing and five others were fighting high seas on Lake Erie—doesn't compare with that of Hazel, but its property damage appears almost as awesome.

The storm, spawned on the plains of Texas, left a string of at least 28 dead in the U.S. before wreaking havoc in a 500-mile arc from Windsor to Ottawa.

HIGHWAYS CLOGGED

Its effects were felt, too, in Quebec and the Maritimes, clogging highways and disrupting plane schedules. In southern Saskatchewan howling winds piled snow in travel-blocking drifts.

Miraculously, only eight persons in Ontario were injured severely enough to require hospital attention. Nine had to be rescued from wind-tossed waters and hundreds were evacuated from flooded homes as threatened areas.

Today, the Ontario storm centre moved further north, where the open spaces of James Bay drained its power. Behind the centre, winds from 25 to 40 miles an hour remained over southern Ontario and Quebec, most of their terrible sting gone.

ICY PELLETS

A wind-driven mixture of rain, ice pellets and snow whipped over the Maritimes today as a storm centred in Maine moved northward across the coastal provinces. There were no reports of damage.

Two persons died in the Ottawa valley during heavy snow storms. Joseph Bertrand, 67, of Wendover, Ont., 50 miles east of Ottawa, was killed when struck by a bus as he crossed the village highway. At Pembroke, nine-year-old Irvine Clarke was struck and killed by a train.

Susan Wooley, 5, was drowned in a creek at Port Credit, 10 miles west of Toronto, when she toppled from a foot bridge by the wind.

FISHERMEN FOUND

Three fishermen—Fred Fuller, 49, his son, Everett, 23, and John Schiller, 18, all of Kingsville, Ont.—were spotted on an island near Pelee Island after being missing overnight.

Two others—muskrat trapper Leo Lauzon of Mitchell's Bay and an unidentified cottager from Long Point—were unaccounted for in lakeshore communities near Chatham.

Five men aboard a tiny fishing vessel battled high waves in Lake Erie in an effort to reach Port Burwell, northwest of London. Bonfires raged on the rain and snow-lashed shore of Lake Erie during the night in hopes of guiding their boat to haven.

FORCED BACK

The boat had tried to make Port Burwell from 30 miles out but buffeting winds forced her back.

A late report says the boat has been driven around 11 miles from Port Burwell.

87 MPH GALE

Winds up to 87 miles an hour lashed six-foot waves over hundreds of lakeshore cottages and homes along lakes Erie, St. Clair and Ontario. Three homes were washed into the Detroit River. Ten cottages were swept away at Long Point, in Norfolk County, and many of the remaining 200 cottages there were in danger. No one was hurt.

SNOW TONIGHT AND THURSDAY

A few light snow flurries tonight and Thursday, with below-freezing temperatures down to 28 degrees and chilly northeast winds at 25 miles per hour, were forecast today for Victoria by weatherman William Mackie.

Temperatures Sweep Prairie

Sleet, Wind, Cold Hit Southern Areas

BOISEVAN, Man. (BUP)—Sixty cars containing hockey fans were stranded late Tuesday night because of drifting snow. RCMP were busy today assisting the stranded motorists out of ditches and drifts. Winds up to 30 miles an hour were not helping them in their rescue operations.

REGINA (CP)—Southern prairie residents were digging out in freezing temperatures today after a wind and snow storm that blocked most highways in the southern part of Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Alberta. Hardest hit was Moose Jaw, Sask., with 13 inches of snow and an overnight low of 13 below. Only one highway in southern Saskatchewan was open to Swift Current early today as gusts whipped snow into hard-packed drifts. Regina recorded eight below and Swift Current, coldest in the province, 18 below.

ROADS IMPASSABLE

The storm extended Tuesday night into Manitoba and temperatures today ranged from five to 15 below throughout the southern part of the province.

In Alberta, gusts up to 45 miles an hour whipped 18 inches of snow into drifts Tuesday in the southwest districts. Sleet made highways impassable.

Lowest Alberta temperature was recorded at Fairview in the Peace River area where the thermometer nosedived to 29 below. Edmonton had 14 below.

British Gales Endanger Ships

LONDON (AP)—Gales ranging up to 85 miles an hour swept the British Isles today, casting two small freighters crazily adrift in stormy seas and driving a luxury liner aground.

The 400-ton Dutch coaster Anna Henny and the 1,288-ton Panamanian freighter Agios Georgios sent distress calls after reporting themselves blown out of control.

Later the Anna Henny managed to grip anchor only 50 yards from the rocky Welsh shore and with engines "full steam ahead" was reported holding her own.

The Colombian ship Ciudad de Bucaramanga raced to the Agios Georgios and radioed that the freighter seemed to have gained control of her steering.

Police Think Babcock Fled in Boat to U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police said they had a report from Blaine, Wash., that a man resembling Babcock stole a fish boat at Blaine, but police here believe it was a garbled report of their original notification that the wanted man bought a boat on the Fraser.

Babcock, starting a 20-year sentence for bank robbery, slipped out of Oakalla prison Sunday with a visiting church choir.

He was reported seen near the Fraser River Tuesday when the 32-foot cabin cruiser was bought. RCMP later saw the boat with one man aboard off Ladner, B.C.

TCA Plane Damaged

MONTREAL (CP)—A Trans-Canada Air Lines Vickers Viscount damaged a propeller today when the blade cut into a snow pile as the aircraft taxied up the runway at Dorval airport. The plane was about to load 40 Canadian newspaper men headed for New York.

BUT RUSSIANS MUST MEAN BUSINESS

Ike Will Ready to Undertake Any Chore for Peace

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said today that once the Paris agreements are ratified it might be time for exploratory talks looking toward a meeting of big power chiefs of state.

The president told his press conference he would make a lot of concessions to get exploratory talks at a lower level. But he added it was different when you are considering a meeting at the summit.

What he wanted then, Eisenhower said, was assurance that the Russians meant business. He said they had violated their promises so often that it made him wary.

Eisenhower said there was no great difference between his viewpoint and that of Senator Walter F. George (De., Ga.), who has proposed that the president initiate a big power conference meeting.

George has said he would want ratification of the Paris agreements—calling for rearming Germany—before a big power session.

Eisenhower said there is no place on earth he would not travel in order to obtain an honorable peace, and no chore he would not undertake if it promised the faintest hope of promoting the general cause of world peace.

He said, however, that he would not favor any conference which could be used for sheer propaganda purposes by the Communists.

In response to questions about George's proposal that a big-power meeting be held without prior concrete show of faith by the Russians, the president said he had never intimated that his demand for deeds rather than words from the Soviets be limited to specific matters.

BIG FIELD

Eisenhower said there is a whole field in which the Russians could show their good faith. He said he is not insisting necessarily that they agree in advance of a conference to an Austrian peace treaty or unification of Korea.

Ike'd put an ad in Variety: Open fer peace talks, have bomb, will travel.

Musical festival's quite a notable event.

Some o' those who're making th' most noise about Churchill's retirement'll go almost unnoticed themselves.

He was reported seen near the Fraser River Tuesday when the 32-foot cabin cruiser was bought. RCMP later saw the boat with one man aboard off Ladner, B.C.

CHAPTER VIII

WHY WORRY?

What is worry? It is simply an unhealthy and destructive mental habit. If you have it, you were not born with it; you acquired it. And since you can change any habit, you can cast worry from your mind. So let's start breaking your worry habit at once.

Haven't you often heard a person say, "I am almost sick with worry," and then add with a laugh, "But I guess worry never really makes you ill." But that is where he is wrong. Worry can make you ill. A doctor recently stated that there is an epidemic of fear and worry in this country. "All doctors," he declared, "are having cases of illness brought on directly by fear and aggravated by worry."

What worry can do to you is indicated by the original meaning of the word itself. It comes from an old Anglo-Saxon word meaning to "choke." If someone were to put his fingers around your throat and press hard, cutting off your air supply, he would be doing to you dramatically what you do to yourself over a long period of time by worry. You choke your abilities, your health, your creative powers.

Opposes Planned
New Law

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe said today Canada has protested to the United States government against a proposed step to restrict imports of Canadian crude oil.

Mr. Howe read to the Commons the protest note delivered to the U.S. state department in Washington March 8 by Arnold Heeney, Canadian ambassador to the U.S.

"The Canadian government is greatly concerned about legislation being considered in the United States to restrict imports of crude oil," the note said. "Legislation of this kind would have unfortunate and damaging effects to which the Canadian government wishes to draw attention."

Both economic and strategic factors point to the desirability of increasing pipeline and refinery capacity to enable Canadian crude to find markets in the U.S., it said.

RESTRICTIVE POLICY

"From the point of view of strategic considerations, it should be borne in mind that western Canadian oil fields are internal to the North American continent. Nothing could be more discouraging to exploration for oil and development of this strategic industry in western Canada than the adoption by the United States of a restrictive import policy."

The note said it might be difficult for anyone outside the U.S. to question a decision that U.S. defense interests required that imports of crude from overseas countries should be limited to the proportion they bore in 1954 to American domestic production.

"This thesis based on defense interests would certainly not be valid, however, if applied to imports from Canada. The Pacific northwest is at present served by pipelines from Canada, the existing alternative being to transport crude to that area by tanker, whether from United States sources or from overseas."

"Tanker ships and ports are so much more vulnerable in wartime than overland transport that the Canadian government would be unable to understand any decision by the United States to restrict imports from Canada for reasons of defense."

Mr. Howe, replying to opposition questions after he read the statement, said there has been no formal reply from Washington.
